TAMMANY RATIFICATION.

Enthusiastic Gathering of the Democracy.

Cannon--Fireworks--Calcium Lights--Torch-light Processions and General Excitement.

Speeches of Augustus Schell, John Van Buren, James T. Brady and Hon. John Kelly.

Pursuant to an extensively-advertised call, the Democracy assembled in full force in and around Tammany Hall, last evening, to ratify the nominations for Mayor, Counsel to the Corporation, and Almshouse Governor—of WM. F. HAVEMEYER, SAMUEL J. TILDEN, and PATRICK MCELROY. The "pocket-piece" kept booming in the Park, the calcium lights shone from Tammany balcony, the torch-light processions, with their pyrotechnic accompaniments, made the surrounding streets and the Park exceedingly picturesque, while inside and outside of the building a dense crowd was congregated.

At twenty minutes to 8 the meeting proper was called to order by Sheriff JOHN KELLY, who proposed Collector SCHELL for Chairman.

The audience ratified the nomination with cheers.

Mr. SCHELL, on taking the Chair, said they had assembled to reiterate their devotion to the Democratic Party, and the Administration, which had been conducted under the principles of that party. They were on the eve of a vital municipal election. The conflict had commenced which might put in jeopardy the Union which they loved, and the interests of this great metropolis. Let, then, the Democratic Party be found again under the time-honored banner of Tammany Hall, that had so often been borne to victory. Names of sterling integrity and high social position would be presented to them this evening. Let them stand shoulder to shoulder, sustaining the Constitution and the Union in support of their candidates. [Cheers.] Thanking them for the honor of selecting him to preside, he would invite their attention to the further business of the evening. Hon. Mr. BARNARD would read the resolutions.

Three cheers were given for Recorder BARNARD, and the proposed list of Vice-Presidents was read and adopted unanimously, as follows:

Mr. FREDERICK L. VULTEE read the following series of resolutions, prepared under the supervision of the Committee of Arrangements. Each resolution was cheered separately, and the whole series was adopted without a dissenting voice:

Resolved, That the increasing burden of municipal taxation is actually sustained by the laboring and industrial classes, in the payment of rent and the purchase of food, clothing and fuel; and the rich and the poor, of every shade of party, are equally interested in placing at the head of the City Government a man known to be honest and capable

Resolved, That WILLIAM F. HAVEMEYER, unanimously nominated for the office of Mayor, is esteemed by the community for his intelligence and integrity, and his successful, independent and courteous discharge of the duties of the Mayoralty in 1845 and 1847, when triumphantly elected to that office, affords the strongest assurance that when again chosen Chief Magistrate of this City, its varied interests and chartered privileges will be maintained and vindicated with similar ability, and vigor.

Resolved, That we regard the approaching contest eminently important to the future character and prosperity of the City—involving the efficiency and economy of its departments, and the faithful administration of the laws and ordinances regulating its government, and that the duty and responsibility of securing these objects is imposed upon every citizen.

Resolved, That from the numerical force of parties in this City, the struggle is virtually between WM. F. HAVEMEYER, whose merchantile, official and political career has been pure, frank and disinterested, and a candidate recklessly unscrupulous and corrupt, and whose success would be disastrous to the City and disgraceful to the Democratic Party.

Resolved, That we recognize in SAMUEL J. TILDEN, the candidate nominated for Corporation Counsel, a lawyer distinguished for his learning and integrity, and whose familiarity with the interests of the City will enable him successfully to discharge the onerous duties of the office, and coöperate with the Mayor in securing for the community the advantages of a sound government.

Resolved, That the renomination of PATRICK MCELROY for the office of Almshouse Governor, meets with our cordial approval. The intelligence, assiduity, and kindly deportment displayed in the management of the charitable institutions committed to his charge, especially commend him to the consideration and support of the Democracy.

Resolved, That these nominations afford the strongest evidence of our desire to secure an honest and efficient administration of our municipal affairs, and maintain the peace, prosperity and reputation of the Empire City, and their certain and triumphant election will effectually vindicate the intelligence and integrity of the community.

During the reading of the resolutions, the Eighth Ward delegation entered, bearing numerous transparencies and banners, among which were the following:

For Mayor,
WM. F. HAVEMEYER,
The Pride of the Eighth Ward.

McELROY
Is the Boy.

The Chairman requested such orators as could make it convenient to address the impatient Democracy outside, who were unable to get in. Capt. RYNDERS was accordingly passed out, over the shoulders of his friends. Mr. BRADY and Mr. VAN BUREN were present, and, with other gentlemen would address them in due time. [Vehement calls for "BRADY—BRADY."] The Committee had decided, however, that Mr. VAN BUREN should speak first. [Prolonged cheers for Prince JOHN.]

SPEECH OF JOHN VAN BUREN.

Mr. VAN BUREN said: Fellow Citizens—I congratulate you on this assemblage here to-night. It is a proud night for this ancient and honored Hall. It is proper, on this occasion, that I should look for a moment at the past history of this old building, and the people that inhabit it. Nearly half a century ago Tammany Hall was founded, and it has been the headquarters of Democratic political associations from the day of its foundation till the present time. [applause.] The scenes and struggles that it has witnessed, may well be recollected. It stood by the patriot TOMPKINS. In the great contest when JACKSON and the Bank were in the field, Tammany Hall s tood by him and conducted him to triumph in that struggle. [Cheers] The same may be said of the great battle for the Independent Treasury, fought under his successor. Tammany Hall stood by POLK, it stood by PIERCE, and it has stood by BUCHANAN. [Applause.] From the time of its foundation to the present time it has sided with the Democratic party, upheld the Democratic banner, and contributed largely and mainly to Democratic victories. What is thus true of its influence in national politics is also no less true of its action in municipal politics. Here did WALTER BOWNE, the respected merchant, receive the earnest support of the Democratic party; here did the stern magistrate, STEPHEN ALLEN, the Mayor of this City, receive support. [Applause.] Yet later did that sturdy chief Magistrate, ISAAC L. VARIAN, receive indorsement. [Cheers.] The skillful, enterprising and successful merchant, CORNELIUS W. LAWRENCE, the accomplished and eloquent MORRIS, the sound and inflexible MICKLE, the successful mechanic and worthy Chief Magistrate WESTERVELT—all were Mayors of the City of New-York, nominated from Tammany Hall, and sustained by it in the great struggles that have passed We are assembled to repeat that conduct that has distinguished us on so many occasions—to nominate a gentleman, not for the first time, nor the second time, but for the third time—Tammany Hall presents WM. F. HAVEMEYER. [Deafening cheers for HAVEMEYER.] I might stop now to consider the names of those associated with Mr. HAVEMEYER upon the ticket. SAMUEL J. TILDEN is my intimate friend; I have known him and his from childhood. I know his integrity, I know his ability, and, indeed, so intimate with him have been my relations that I feel almost as if I were speaking of myself, as if I were guilty of self-praise, when I commend him as the Democratic candidate. Mr. MCELROY is known to most of you, and has proven his capacity for the office that he fills by honorable and successful discharge of his duties during the last term. The great overruling question is with reference to the chief magistracy of the City With regard to Mr. HAVEMEYER—he is known to you—it is not necessary for me to sound his praise. I have had it done to me by those who are politically opposed to him, and I shall detain you a few moments while I call your attention to some expressions that have been made by your old, uniform and earnest opponents with regard to Mr. HAVEMEYER. The Evening Post, of the 21st inst., said:

Mr. HAVEMEYER is an upright, intelligent, experienced man, who, if he should be elected, will discharge the duties of the Mayoralty with honor to himself and to the City.

He has this special recommendation, apart from his personal worth: that he has twice held the office before, performing the functions on both occasions with decision and energy; and when he delivered up his trust, without a whisper against the purity of his official conduct, he might easily have been reelected. In the embarrassing duties of the place his experience would be of no little advantage to him. He is familiar with the routine of practice, with the municipal laws and ordinances, with the different classes of persons who do business with the Department, and with the character of the men who are likely to come before him for subordinate appointments.

Again, our Municipal election was separated from the State election, as to the time in which it should be held, in order that it might be made to turn exclusively upon issues peculiar to the City. Our interests are so vast and important, and our position in many respects so peculiar, that it was deemed desirable by the decision of them, to avoid the various party and political prejudices which are apt to operate in more general contests. The policy, we think, was a good one; when questions are entirely local they ought to be determined on local grounds; and no considerations of collateral or ulterior influence ought to be allowed to interfere with the free choice of the elector. We in New-York have nearly a million of people, and hundreds of millions of property to be more or less affected by the character of our Chief Magistrate. It is of the last importance to us to have good men in place, whatever their politics in other respects.

Again, office is regarded as a simple instrument of speculation, and the most corrupt practices are indulged in with impunity. Let us, then, have men in the most responsible positions who will try to put a stop to these iniquities; who will not steal themselves, nor allow others to steal; who will not collude with criminals, and who will enforce the laws, whatever the consequences. [Applause.]

Mr. HAVEMEYER, we hold, is such a man, and we should be glad to know that he has accepted the nomination, and to see him elected.

And the NEW-YORK TIMES of Wednesday, the 23d inst., said:

"Our own conviction is that any man who votes for Mayor on any other ground than that of regard for the interests of the City, violates his duty as a citizen. The Municipal election has nothing whatever to do with Federal politics. It is purely and exclusively a local affair. The Legislature has given us a separate election, for the express purpose of keeping City interests separate and apart from party politics. Political interests are attended to in November. The December election is dedicated, solely and exclusively, to City affairs. We have six hundred thousand people to govern, five hundred millions of property to be protected,—the expenditure of seven millions a year to be regulated, and the peace, order, health, cleanliness, comfort and honor of the Metropolis of the Western world to be cared for and promoted. These interests are large enough to demand attention on their own account. It is a wrong and an outrage to make them mere make-weights in the fierce struggle for party ascendancy. And any voter who gives his vote for City officers from party motives is guilty of gross injustice to the City, and violates his own sense of propriety and of right. And the attempt of party leaders and party journalists to dragoon men into voting for these officers on party grounds is as contemptible as it is selfish and unpatriotic.

Mr. HAVEMEYER, as every one knows, has accepted the nomination purely for the public good. He sacrifices his private interests to a public duty. No man imputes to him selfish aims or any unworthy motive; and no one doubts that he would perform the duties of the office with vigor, fidelity, and a single-hearted devotion to the public welfare. We believe it to be the duty of every citizen who appreciates the necessity of a thorough reform in our City Government to aid his election by all the means in his power.

Such is the testimony borne by our political opponents to the nomination made by the Tammany Hall Democracy, and, fellow-citizens, it would be difficult indeed, with the political, professional or personal partiality that I entertain for the candidate individually, for me to add anything to this strong and conclusive proof—these expressions of confidence by those who have been heretofore politically opposed to him. There was something in the manner of the nomination of Messrs. HAVEMEYER and TILDEN which announces the approach of a new era in the political history of the City of New-York, as well as other portions of the State. They were not candidates for the places. [Applause.] They were not hangers-on at political conventions. They did not seek the places—for the places sought them, and the consequence was that good men were nominated. [Confusion near the door.] It was stated by some that the Convention was dictated to by Mr. HAVEMEYER. I ask your attention to a single denial on my part to that and one other charge. He made no dictation to the Committee or the Convention. He made no terms as to who he would run with, or whom he would have on the ticket. He had only one answer to make to everybody who approached him on the subject of the mayoralty, "Gentlemen, I am not a candidate; I do not desire the office, and I would ask you, as a favor to me, not to put me in nomination." But they did put him in nomination, they offered him gentlemen who would be agreeable to him to be his associates, and he accepted the nomination. [Cheers.] One other charge I must call your attention to before I sit down. Mr. HAVEMEYER has been uniformly a Democrat of Tammany Hall. Those who are opposed to him, in which I include his Black Republican opponents, charge that he voted for FREMONT at the last Presidential election. I believe nobody will deny that I was an earnest supporter of JAMES BUCHANAN and J. C. BRECKINRIDGE, however earnestly other people may have supported him, and whatever others may have done in the way of speeches to contribute to their election ("That's so," and cheers) no one was more earnest than I was; ["Go in" and laughter,] but I say to you that it stood me in hand then to know who were the supporters and who were the opponents of BUCHANAN, and I tell you Mr. HAVEMEYER voted the Buchanan and Breckinridge ticket. [Applause.] So much for charges made against Mr. HAVEMEYER by those who will find it a great deal more convenient to assail him than defend themselves—who think it best to assail in the hope of escaping the necessity of defence. A great deal has been said to draw our Irish fellow-citizens from the support of our Democratic ticket, and I want to say a word or two to you, because it has hardly ever been my province in my life to address Irishmen as Irishmen. I, gentlemen, regard you as I hope you regard yourselves, as Americans in fact, and in heart. [Applause.] You will bear with me for stating that at this moment Irishmen and the sons of Irishmen hold office. The Sheriff of the County, in the person of our excellent friend JOHN KELLY, is a descendant of an Irishman. [Cheers.] The present County Clerk, JOHN CLANCY, is a descendant of an Irishman. [Applause.] If you will allow me to remind you, the three Democratic Senators elected at the last election are Irishmen or descendants of Irishmen. I allude to RICHARD B. CONNOLLY, JOHN MCLEOD MURPHY and BERNARD KELLY. You will allow me to remind you that the President of this Convention is a descendant of an Irishman. Your nominee for Alms-House Governor, Mr. MCELROY, is an Irishman. You will allow me to remind you that both the offices of Mayor and Corporation Counsel were offered to JAMES T. BRADY, an eloquent and able Irishman. [Enthusiastic applause.] You will permit me to add that it was on the nomination of an Irishman that both Mr. HAVEMEYER and Mr. TILDEN were finally selected for these places. [A voice—Where's DEVELIN?] There is nothing that should require an Irishman to forfeit his political position and quit Mr. HAVEMEYER—who, if he is not an Irishman, is a Dutchman, which is the next best thing to it, (Laughter and applause.) Now fellow citizens, whether Irishmen, Germans, or Frenchmen—whatever may be the land of your nativity, you should forget that in your political and personal associations, and only remember that you are Americans—not for the accident of birth, but for that higher and prouder title and true patriotism which makes you love America and her institutions. [Applause.] You will remember that this is the regular Democratic organization, representing that party—["That's so,"]—that party which, when a proposition was made to proscribe a citizen in consequence of the place of his birth, and to exclude him from office in consequence of his religious belief—rose up from the Atlantic to the Pacific, throughout the entire length and breadth of the land, and overthrew this oppressing, unconstitutional "American" organization. [Cheers.] Now I want to call your attention for one moment to the course of FERNANDO WOOD.

The mention of Mr. WOOD's name was the cause of the first indication, to the uninitiated, of the presence of any Wood men, who intended to disturb the meeting. As soon as Mr. VAN BUREN mentioned his name, a shout for him arose from a solid column of men who had taken a position through the centre of the Hall, and were standing abreast, like a military company, ready to act on the offensive right and left. The shout for WOOD was answered by three tremendous cheers for WM. F. HAVEMEYER, and immediately the regular army of Tammany leaped from the platform, and with HAVEMEYER for their cry, bore down upon the insurgents. The fight was not long; neither was it bloody. The insurgents did not afford an opportunity for either a long fight or a bloody one. In fact, they ran away without even showing fight; and for once Old Tammany did attack her enemy in the rear. She could not do otherwise and do anything at all, for really there was nothing else exposed. The solid column of Wood insurgents grew more dense, as hurriedly it moved towards the door, from the incessant punching it received behind, and when it reached the foot of the stairs there was nothing of the admirable organization and perfect discipline under which it had entered the room.

Comparative quiet being at length restored, Mr VAN BUREN proceeded as follows: I would be very glad to have any friend of Mr. WOOD here, if he will only keep quiet; and if he wants to speak I would like to have him come up here. It has not been the policy of the Democracy to disturb these meetings and if I understand that I am to be disturbed by those who come here yearly to make confusion in these meetings I shall not be responsible for the consequences to them. [Three good cheers for HAVEMEYER. Well, now I think I will have order. I do not propose to discuss the character of FERNANDO WOOD That is a matter that has been fully discussed in the courts of justice.

[Here there was a cry of "Put him out," evidently directed against some unfortunate Wood-ite, and in a jiffy the poor devil was pulled out of the room, and down stairs, under a shower of blows, and somebody crying out "all right."]

Mr. VAN BUREN proceeded—I do not propose to go into Mr. WOOD's private life. I avoid all that he has done subject to discussion, up to the day he accepted the office of Mayor. I do not wish to embarrass those who supported him for office. If he had had sufficient ability to conduct his office properly he would have acted differently. In October, 1857, he sent a communication to the Common Council, which, in my humble opinion, was fraught with evil to this community, and destructible to Democratic character. I shall call your attention to what was at that time recommended by Mr. WOOD. You will bear in mind that the Democratic Party has been distinguished always for the protection of the rights of the poor man. I have no fear that if an election were to be determined by the mechanics and farmers of the country, the Democracy would carry it ten to one. But their support is always obtained through prudence, and when attempts are made for a demagogical purpose to gain their support, only injures the Democratic party, and benefits nobody. Mayor WOOD made a communication to the Common Council, encouraging the working man to rely upon assistance from government instead of upon his own exertions, amid the competition he would meet with in his own department of industry. He recommended what he knew was impracticable—what he knew was not authorized by the Charter. He stirred up the poor against the rich, and the rich against the poor. He encouraged idleness and thieving, and recommended as a matter of economy that the City should support thieves before they steal, instead of compensating for property after it had been stolen. Here are some extracts from his message, sent to the Common Council Oct. 2, 1857:

"We have over two hundred thousand persons in this City who, either directly or indirectly, depend for subsistence upon manual labor. If the present want of employment continues, they must rely upon either public or private charity, and I fear that not a few will resort to violence and force rather than submit to either of these precarious and humiliating dependencies. Thus the taxes will be materially increased, and the peace of the City may be disturbed and its good name tarnished.

Truly may it be said that in New-York those who produce everything get nothing, and those who produce nothing get everything. They labor without income, while surrounded by thousands living in affluence and splendor, who have income without labor. But now even this resource, with its poor pittance is to be taken from them," &c.

He also recommends buying fifty thousand barrels of flour, fifty-four thousand barrels corn meal or potatoes, paying for it in stock; recommends starting all the public works that are or shall be required—the park, reservoir, streets, docks, engine-houses, &c., and paying laborers in provisions. And, after an allusion to the season that was approaching, and the threatening destitution, he said:

"Do not supinely permit such a calamity. Give no man excuse for violence or depredation upon property; and remember that, in a population of three-quarters of a million, like ours, there are to be found many of the vicious who will not omit such an opportunity to plunder and pillage. Better support such at public expense, than to pay the citizens for their property after it is stolen or destroyed."

But Tammany Hall and the Common Council had repudiated it, as they had its originator, FERNANDO WOOD. [Cheers and groans for WOOD.] He regarded the nomination of OPDYKE by the Republicans as an evidence that that party wanted to elect WOOD; and again called their attention to the fact that the TIMES and other moderate and respectable journals had sustained Mr. HAVEMEYER. He called attention to the course of the Republican party and the Republican press on the Harper's Ferry affair, as indicating an indorsement of JOHN BROWN, because there was no general condemnation of the act. He defended Gov. WISE's precautions, saying that it would be no more remarkable that an attempt should be made to rescue JOHN BROWN than that JOHN BROWN should have planned and carried into execution his daring scheme. He defended the fears and precautions of the Virginians as but measures of necessity, and indorsed the justice of JOHN BROWN's sentence. He thought that the heroes and orators that Virginia had furnished, and the fact that Ohio was but a daughter of Virginia and deeply indebted to her, ought to have prevented BROWN's attempt. He hoped that the party that had sustained TOMPKINS, JACKSON and SILAS WRIGHT would not desert HAVEMEYER, TILDEN and MCELROY.

SPEECH OF JAMES T. BRADY.

Mr. BRADY, who was vociferously called for, rose and said:

Mr. CHAIRMAN AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: I am very much rejoiced that you seem to know me. [Laughter and cheers, accompanied by a shout of "That is so."] I am more rejoiced that one accustomed to associate with his fellow-Democrats so intimately from boyhood, under the same banner, and with unaltered faith, is known to our enemies also. [Cheers.] If man wanted to beg[illegible] life and connect himself in any way with politics, even the example of him who now addresses you should afford him the stimulus and the encouragement to connect himself with the Democratic Party, though he were moved by no higher motive than vanity, and desired to have that quality of his nature fully gratified. I, who had almost entirely withdrawn from political life, found myself of sufficient consequence within the brief period of a few months to receive the attentions of three great and important Presses in the City of New-York. The Herald, whose influence we all know to be great, published my name, day after day, in a list of our rich Democrats in this City. [Cheers, and a cry of "Rich in intellect," which evoked laughter.] And nothing could have been more gratifying to me, a bachelor, in the "sere and yellow leaf," for, at the very moment when I began to despair of ever being admitted to that other union which we cherish, even before the "union of States," [laughter,] that which the women characterize when they speak of being "in favor of union to a man,' [laughter,] I have my failing energies and my favorite hope restored in some of what they call the best circles, by going forth accredited by the Herald as a wealthy adherent of the Democratic Party. [Applause.] If you knew the amount of capital on which that reputation rests I think you would be much astonished. [Great laughter.] When I last had the pleasure to address you here I spoke a few words varying from the opinion of the eloquent and highly-respected friend who preceded me, in favor of preserving the feeble flame of life still flickering in an old man's bosom. I did that for old [illegible]WN in Tammany Hall, which no Republican association has done or dares to do. [Cheers.] It met the approbation of such men as I see standing round me here. And for this the Evening Post declared that I was the "Pious BRADY." [Laughter.] I confess that this reputation for sanctity is based on capital much less than that which sustains my fame for wealth. [Renewed laughter.] But it was quite natural that the poet of the Post should desire to construct a new Æneid—an Irish æneid—and that I should be the pious hero of that new production. This has elevated my hopes to a culminating point. And now last, not least, the Tribune, a paper which evinces so much intellect, and over which I linger with delight, because its views are in so many particulars refreshingly opposed to my own, has, within a few days, taken me into its special charge—folded its fond arms around me, and taken me from the care of the Democracy, to weep over me as a poor outcast rescued from the cruelty of a harsh foster-mother. I am obliged to the Tribune for its kind phrases, but must say that its sorrow is entirely gratuitous, and astonishes more than it consoles me. I desired no nomination for any office to be filled by the coming election. The most gratifying announcement to me, connected with the recent political agitation was, that I was allowed to remain in the "private station" which I court, and not subjected to the pest of accepting a station in which I could not render the public any service so essential as they might be good enough to anticipate. It was said that my name might aid our party, and the people. If that name had about it the sanction of high ancestry, or the prouder honor of merited distinction, there is no purpose for which it might better be consecrated, than to be inscribed on that banner of Democracy under which our army has so often accomplished glorious results for our national progress. But I did not deem myself deserving the hopes my friends expressed, and I declined the honor they tendered. I was not a candidate for that office, nor for the office of Counsel to the Corporation. The gentleman nominated (Mr. TILDEN) is a man of integrity and a lawyer of intelligence, who if elected to the position assigned him, will, in conjunction with Mr. HAVEMEYER, largely promote the welfare of our City and its inhabitants. [Applause.] I will not linger here to descant on the merits of Mr. HAVEMEYER. [Cries of "BRADY," "BRADY."] I was once Counsel of the Corporation. During one year of my term he was Mayor. I was with him daily, and had every means to estimate his capacity and honor—and I know that he is not inferior to any man who could be produced on this island in the desire or capacity to discharge well the duties of the high trust for which he has been nominated. The papers will have it that in his letter of acceptance he expressed a preference for Mr. TILDEN, and disparaged myself and others as compared with that gentleman. I do not so understand him. But if he had said what was unfavorable of me, that would not prevent my bearing this truthful testimony to his upright character, and thus commending him to your earnest support.

Of the Republican candidate I will only say that he is said to be intelligent and upright—an excellent and estimable citizen. He adorns society, no doubt, but I agree with Mr. VAN BUREN, that he must continue to do so in the private sphere. As to FERNANDO WOOD—[Cries of "Take care, JAMES!"]

Here Mr. BRADY said: If there be any gentleman in the crowd who thinks himself competent to give me advice, I hope my friends near him will separate from his person, so that he may be in a circle fairly in my view, and that I may have the full benefit of his valuable suggestions. [Here occurred cries of "Who is he?" and a characteristic flutter at one part of the hall, followed by the speedy ejection of the voluntary oracle, accompanied by advice from Mr. BRADY not to damage him. Mr. BRADY then continued:] As to Mr. WOOD, there is one insuperable objection to him, irrespective of the talent he has, or the influence he hopes to gain, viz.: that he is pre-eminently his own candidate for the Mayoralty. I do not believe that at this crisis, when men of all classes are convinced that corruption taints our City government, any one who announces himself as peculiarly qualified to heal the body politic is exactly the physician for the occasion. I think the patient should have some part in the selection. Speaking with profound reverence I may say that he who is to perform the newest miracles, cleanse the leper and give strength to the paralytic, can be selected by our people, as the Democracy have done in this case, out of the ranks of seclusion, where real merit is apt to be found.

I believe, from the exhibitions made here, within and outside of this hall, notwithstanding the sudden and brief appearance of a few bubbles which broke for an instant the surface of that great tide which bears the Democracy on to triumph, Mr. HAVEMEYER will be triumphantly elected over all his opponents. [Cheers.] I am told that Mr. WOOD founds his chief claims on his course in opposition to the Metropolitan Police act. I will not assail his motives in opposing that act, but I do say that his advice to the policemen not to obey a law of the land, was most pernicious, and presented an example of executive conduct which I trust will never be followed in this City. The law was nefarious, no doubt, but the officer sworn to execute it had no right to nullify its provisions. [Cheers.] It is said also that he favors most liberal views as to observing the Sabbath. I respect the views of those who entertain the most severe views on this subject; but I claim for the mass more liberty on that day than such men would permit. And I remember that under Mr. WOOD Policemen were specially detailed to spy out and arrest certain classes who prosecuted their usual business on Sunday. I hope he will not persist in pressing this part of his new doctrine on the attention of his admirers. Hypocrisy can receive from the discerning no sentiment but disgust. And while I feel no personal hostility to Mr. WOOD, and admit he possesses capacity, I must yet say, as one who has not failed to observe his career, that in reference to his connection with public trusts, I have not now, I never had, and I never will have, confidence in his declarations, or in his promises. I feel a pride in the City of my birth. I see around me here those who may not have been so fortunate in life as I—in positions which men call humble—playmates of my youth in the old Sixth Ward; and if it were decorous to mention their names, I might speak of them here, but this would savor of the demagogue, and I despise the demagogue and all his arts. [Cheers.] I would not offend a poor man's self-respect by grasping his hand, and avowing toward him a warmth of feeling which he might, in view of our respective conditions, feel to be in some degree affected; but I am delighted to know that there is a place where one may meet his fellow-men as brothers, without distinction of rank, and shake the hands of our hearts, and let our souls commune together in deep sincerity. The contact and the sympathy arising out of equal interests in a beloved cause stir me. The time and the place for such a communication are here, and now. And no man who has not stood before a body of his fellow-men—weary perhaps with professional labor, and incapable for the moment to interest them—can know what it is to feel the inspiration coming up from the associates of his faith, even like a fragrant incense of the earth, to quicken his intellectual power, stir the pulses of his heart, and inspire his lips with the power to excite that applause which the Democracy know so well how to bestow generously. [Cheers.] Feeling all this I feel it my duty to utter what I have said about the proper man for the crisis in our City affairs now presented. I will not detain you, for I must be a mere gleaner in the field from which Mr. VAN BUREN has garnered the entire harvest. [Cries of "Go on."] But I must recall the influences of bad legislation, such as the Republicans unfairly exercised at Albany, in treating our City as a conquered province, and arrogating to the Capital that power of government which should abide with our local authorities. The Court of Appeals, in two prominent instances, has condemned the acts of that party. First, in reference to the policemen dismissed without even the form of a trial, numbers of whom have long been wandering through our streets, and vainly seeking from Courts of Justice the justice they deserved, in return for the cruel wrongs they suffered. And again, when a pliant Governor, who should have known and acted better, undertook, against all law, to appoint a Street Commissioner for us. [A voice—"He was a King."] But shall be king no more. I propose that there be a change in this respect. The City is in itself an Empire in territory, wealth and power. It should and must govern itself. I hope all good men may unite in the effort to secure that result The moment for such a reformation seems to have arrived. I rejoice that we meet on the anniversary of a day covered all over with glory in the annals of our country—the day which saw the British in abject guise leave forever the soil on which the hateful presence of its abused power was never again to be exhibited. [Cheers.] I hope a new Evacuation day may come on the election day, and that, as our oppressors of old went forth from our City in hopeless and eternal exile, so all who wrongfully interfere with our rights or prosperity, may be forever deprived of the means or capacity to destroy or impair either. [Loud and prolonged cheers.]

REMARKS OF THE HON. JOHN KELLY.

As soon as the round of cheers that followed Mr. BRADY's concluding remarks had been given, there were loud calls for JOHN KELLY, and his appearance was the signal for another rousing welcome.

Mr. KELLY said that when he entered Tammany Hall it was not with the intention of addressing the vast Democratic assemblage that was there before him. But as some of the speakers who were expected had not yet arrived, he would speak for a few minutes, till the speakers they would be pleased to hear should arrive. [Cries of "Go on JOHN—we want to hear you."] Continuing, he said, that for a number of years he had been accustomed to speak in Tammany Hall, and, of course, to the Democracy, in favor of the man (FERNANDO WOOD) who was now, in opposition to the organization that had elevated him to power, endeavoring to destroy that organization. It was from that Hall that he had derived all the power he ever held, and now that he was opposing it, he (Mr. KELLY) would ask by what authority, through what organization, or by whose desire, was he now working to his utmost, against the very organization that had elevated him to power? By no organization, other than his own; by no expressed desire, other than his own, was he now before the people as a candidate for the Mayoralty. (Cries of that's a fact, JOHN, and applause.) He was nominated by himself, and he was running for himself. [Great applause.] He (Mr. KELLY) did not like that style of action in politics. He believed the people of the Democratic Party were sufficiently well informed to indicate the man they desired for any desired position; sufficiently intelligent to choose the best man, and sufficiently independent to make their choice publicly and emphatically known. (Cries of "You're right, JOHN," and applause.) Now, Mr. WOOD had not been chosen as the Democratic (or Tammany Hall) candidate for the office of Mayor to be elected in December, and so long as he had taken the position he had done, there was no Democrat, he was sure, who would countenance him in what he was endeavoring now to do. [Applause.] When, (said Mr. KELLY,) we see corruption running rampant through our State Legislature; when we see the rights of the great City of New-York disregarded, as we have seen, is it not time, is it not our duty to select such men to guard our privileges as we know will have the ability and the influence, through their personal characters and positions, to command respect and insure success. [Cries of certainly—and applause.] It would be, he said, the utmost of folly for any Democrat to vote for Mr. WOOD. Mr. WOOD could not be elected. He was opposed to the Democratic organization, and therefore he, having secured all he had received from the Democratic Party, could not effect, and could not gain the regular Democratic support if he did expect it; and therefore he could not succeed. [Cheers.] He had put himself in opposition to the organization that had stood by him, and, therefore, he should be crushed out, for the Democratic Party could do better without such men than with them. [Cries of "Right again, JOHN," and cheers.] He had been told that there were some men with whom he was accustomed to associate intended to, or were working for Mayor WOOD. If such were the case, and he did not think it was, all he asked of them was to think what Mr. WOOD had done when he was Mayor, and to think whether they really wanted him there again, when there was a chance of having such a man as WM. F. HAVEMEYER. [Three cheers for HAVEMEYER.] Mr. HAVEMEYER was a man he had known for many years, and he recollected well that, when he was in office, and was applied to to give office to some men on the ground that they belonged to this or that interest, he replied that as an official he knew nothing of any other interest than that of the City. And he had gone to him, himself, to get positions for men in the Sixth Ward, when all he desired to know was, were they fitted for the positions they desired. Ascertaining that, to his own satisfaction, he always appointed them. [Great applause.] Mr. HAVEMEYER, he said, had been charged with having voted for JOHN C. FREMONT. In answer to that he could say, from one in whom he had implicit ter for cracked cleverness by each of his successive escapades. The last, his letter to Lord BROUGHAM inclosing a donation to the Garibaldi Fund, is thought to be more calculated to do mischief to the cause he affects to serve than to promote it. He abuses the French and the Italians equally; and if half he says of the latter be true, they have as little title to independence as chance of obtaining it. With remarkable ability of a certain kind, Lord ELLENBOROUGH has at all times shown unmistakable symptoms of incoherency. A person of great eminence told me once that he had seriously declared at the time of the Russian war that he would never be content, and England's empire in Asia never would be safe, until he had marched at the head of a Sepoy army from Bombay to Constantinople!

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

Festivals in honor of the centenary of SCHILLER had taken place with great éclat in London, Liverpool and other English towns, as well as in the principal cities of Germany.

Lord BROUGHAM had obtained a rule in the Court of Queen's Bench, for the editor of the Westmoreland Gazette, to show cause why a criminal information should not be filed against him for an alleged libel upon his Lordship.

The Prince of WALES' eighteenth birthday was celebrated on the 9th of November. He is now fully qualified to ascend the throne as King, in the event of a vacancy occurring.

The report circulated, says the London Globe, by a very well informed cotemporary, that the case of SMETHURST has been disposed of, and that he will receive a free pardon, is not correct. No free pardon has been granted, and the case has not been disposed of in any way.

THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

Signature of the Treaties—Pecuniary Adjustment with Sardinia—The Regency Question—Position of the English Government.

The Moniteur officially announces that the remaining treaties of peace were signed on Thursday, Nov. 10, at Zurich. This statement is coupled with another announcement that France and Austria have agreed to promote the convocation of an European Congress, which will "deliberate on the means most adapted to establish the pacification of Italy on solid and durable bases." The "advantages" of the treaties just concluded by the Zurich negotiators are explained in a circular which has been addressed by Count WALEWSKI to the French Envoys at foreign courts, and which is now published in the Moniteur. The official exposition of the "advantages" has yet to reach us; but it appears that France has made some arrangements with Piedmont—arrangements unexplained by the telegram which has been received—to coöperate in making the payments due to Austria on account of the Lombard debt. It is officially admitted, too, by Count WALEWSKI'S circular, that France has required Sardinia to pay £2,400,000, either for the expenses of the late war, or for the reimbursement of the cost of the arms, provisions and stores supplied by the French Government to the Piedmontese army.

A telegram from Turin brings us the important information that, "in consequence of a very urgent representation received from the French Government," the King of Sardinia had refused to grant the Prince DE CARIGNAN permission to accept the regency of Central Italy. Thus King VICTOR EMANUEL has succumbed to the dictation of his Imperial ally, the "urgent representation" having no doubt been one which he did not dare to disregard when it proceeded from the master of 60,000 troops in the heart of Italy, and the creditor of Piedmont for, at least, £2,400,000. Similarly "urgent" instances probably influenced the Sardinian Sovereign's answer to the Emperor LOUIS NAPOLEON'S letter, for the semi-official Patrie now assures us that, in his reply, King VICTOR EMANUEL "expresses confidence in the sympathies of the Emperor NAPOLEON in favor of the Italian cause, and declares that he will leave to the decision of the Congress all that which relates to the reorganization of Italy."

It is further announced that the Government of France has received assurances that the Pope was only waiting an opportune moment to make public certain reforms, by which the Government of the Clergy would be replaced by a Government generally composed of the Laity, and which would give to the country better guarantees for the administration of justice, and for the control of public finances, by means of an Assembly elected by the Pope.

AFFAIRS IN ITALY.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM GARIBALDI.

Gen. GARIBALDI has addressed the following letter to the Modena Gazette:

It was my good fortune to utter one word which alluded to a matter of supreme necessity for Italy, and found, as it could not fail to do, an echo in the heart of all my countrymen.

I asked for arms, and in every spot of our Peninsula, and of many other civilized nations, there arose a noble emulation to answer my call, to further the defence of a cause, than which history cannot point out another more righteous, or loftier.

This noble competition in lending a hand to the cause of patriotism and civilization by no means surprised me; because I have been for many years convinced that the number of minds trained to brave, patriotic and liberal sentiments is by far greater than the oppressors are willing to believe; yet so rapid and so splendid was the result of my proposal that I find myself unprepared for the difficult management of an enterprise which turns out as vast as it is important and sacred.

In order, therefore, to provide that this spontaneous aid to our cause should be followed up by a well-organized and active administration, I deemed it expedient to intrust the direction of the enterprise to Dr. ENRICO BESANA, of Milan, and GIUSEPPE FINZI, of Mantua, whose names are well known for their political devotion to the interests of their country, and for their tried integrity.

The direction shall reside in Bologna, under my immediate supervision; a branch of it shall be established in Milan, to facilitate the conveyance of the sums collected, and the correspondence thereto referring, with the northern districts of the Peninsula.

May fortune be as propitious to us as our love to our country is earnest and steady.

E. GARIBALDI.

PROCLAMATION OF THE TUSCAN GOVERNMENT.

The following declaration of the Tuscan Government has been published in the Monitore:

"An august word has repeatedly gone forth to reassure Central Italy from foreign intervention, provided this country be able to maintain that order which wins us the sympathies of all Europe; but the most obvious prudence still advised the Governments to strengthen internal order by arms, lest Europe should charge us with a listless neglect of our own destinies, and should think of turning our apparent indifference to the detriment of the legitimate wishes and interests of the people. Hence, military preparations have not been the last thought of the Tuscan Government, which has neglected and neglects nothing to improve its young army, the pride and bulwark of the country against the external enemies, just as our admirable National Guard is the guardian of internal security and freedom. Among other provisions, we are glad to announce the transformation of 25,000 muskets (effected by Messrs. BURNAND & PRELAT, according to their system,) into armes de precision, with rifled barrels and graduated aims, which weapons have been found excellent in practice, be it for the length of their range, or be it for the accuracy of their aim. The contract is already being carried into execution, and more than 1,000 muskets per week are to be delivered into our arsenals."

IMPORTANT PROCLAMATION FROM THE DICTATOR OF PARMA.

MODENA, Wednesday, Nov. 9.

The following is a summary of a proclamation issued to-day by Signor Farini, Dictator of Modena and Parma, who has been provisionally appointed Governor of the Romagna by the assembly of Bologna.

The Dictator commences by stating that he accepts with confidence the powers conferred upon him by the representatives of the people, and that he will do his utmost to overcome all difficulties and dangers. The Dictator continues thus:—"Europe knows you are catholics and that you belong to the church as well as the catholics of all other nations, but as Italians you belong to Italy, and it is your duty to love and defend your country and to seek its prosperity. You only ask for that which all civilized nations have sought for—namely, liberty of speech and conscience, and political freedom and equality. You also demand the application of those principles which form the basis of the public right of nations. The glorious chief of that people which shed its blood in our cause, having invited us to become soldiers to fight for the independence of Italy under the standard of VICTOR EMANUEL, and to become free citizens of our country. Europe knows that it can secure the peace of Italy by rendering Italy to the Italians. It is aware that we are ready to give the necessary guarantees for order throughout the country; but it also knows that the people of the Romagna, if forbearance and moderation should be of no avail, sooner than submit to the yoke, would be advised only by their duty to their country and the pursuit of the path of honor."

AFFAIRS IN THE ROMAGNA.

BOLOGNA, Wednesday, Nov. 9.

The National Assembly of the Romagna has approved, by a large majority, the following proposition:

"To accept the resignation of the Governor-General of the Romagna, and to transfer to the Dictator of Parma and Modena full powers to govern the Romagna until Prince CARIGNAN has assumed the Regency."

The Sardinian Constitution has been proclaimed by the Assembly, which resolved that the time for its application shall be fixed by the Government. It was also resolved that the power to dissolve the present Assembly shall rest with Prince CARIGNAN.

The Assembly was then prorogued.

FRENCH ADVICE TO THE ITALIANS.

The Paris Constitutionnel, in an article on the Congress, signed by its principal editor, exhorts the Italians to be practical, and not to endeavor to advance too rapidly, and render the unity of Italy a weak counterpart of the unity of France. It further states that, if they are determined to carry on this union, the reforms granted will enable them to do so if they advance with prudence. The article terminates by expressing a hope that the Italians will receive with deference the counsels of the Powers of Europe, who will go to the Congress full of feelings of sympathy for the Italian cause.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

GARIBALDI had subscribed 5,000 francs to the Million-musket Fund; and had besides issued a stirring proclamation in furtherance of the scheme. The Florence Correspondent of the Times says the subscription was filling up beyond the most sanguine expectations.

The Times Paris Correspondent says the election of Prince CARIGNAN to the Regency of Parma and Tuscany was received in Paris with extreme displeasure. The Piedmontese Government having been requested from Paris to restrain the impetuous spirit of the Italian patriots, declared that it could not be responsible for the acts of populations over which the King was not permitted to exercise even a temporary control.

REPLY OF VICTOR EMANUEL TO NAPOLEON III.

The Corriere Mercantile of Genoa gives the following version of a letter which, it says, was written by King VICTOR EMANUEL in answer to that of the Emperor NAPOLEON addressed to his Majesty. These are the three principal points insisted upon by the Genoese journals as most important:

1. The formal obligation contracted by the King towards the Italian populations, whose wishes he has accepted. For this reason, the King was unwilling to sign the Villafranca preliminaries save as to what concerned himself, viz., the cession of Lombardy, reserving the rest.

2. The Confederation scheme, which the King declares incompatible with the interests of Italy and of the State, and as otherwise impracticable except with such radical changes as would be unacceptable to Austria, the Pope, &c.

3. The propriety, the necessity even, of not prejudging the deliberations of the Congress, it being henceforth undoubted that a Congress must be assembled. The King invokes the unshakable solidarity of interests between France and Italy, a solidarity sealed for eternity by the brotherhood in arms of the two peoples and the two Sovereigns.

It is to be observed, says a letter writer, that up to the present time none of the Sardinian journals seem to know exactly the sense of the King's letter; a few days will, no doubt, end the uncertainty, and we shall get the exact text of what must be considered a most important document.

A Paris letter in the Indépendance, of Brussels, says:

"A reply of VICTOR EMANUEL to the letter of NAPOLEON III. has been talked of here for some days past. Without being able to speak positively as to the authenticity of this letter, the existence of it appears very probable, and the contents are said to be in accordance with what is known of the attitude and the policy of the Sardinian Monarch. VICTOR EMANUEL is said to have declared himself most grateful for the kindness testified by the Emperor towards Piedmont and her Sovereign, but he at the same time observes that if NAPOLEON III. is bound by the preliminaries of Villafranca, he, the King, is equally so by the expressed wishes of the Italian people. He does not conceal from his powerful ally that his representative will support at the Congress a line of policy different from that of the French plenipotentiary. VICTOR EMANUEL, however, engages not to support that cause except by diplomatic means, and to abstain from any armed intervention in Central Italy, unless compelled to do so by any violent foreign interference. On this point the Piedmontese government is quite in accord with that of France."

THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT AND THE CONGRESS.

SPEECH OF SIR G. B. LEWIS AT THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET.

On the evening of the 9th the Lord Mayor entertained her Majesty's Ministers at a banquet at the Guildhall. Lords PALMERSTON and RUSSELL, and Mr. GLADSTONE were not present, having received invitations to a ball at Windsor, given by her Majesty on the occasion of the Prince of Wales attaining his majority. After the loyal and complimentary toasts had been given and responded to,

The Duke of SOMERSET said the office which he had the honor to hold, gave him the privilege of returning thanks for the compliment which had been paid to the navy. He felt that it was the earnest wish of the whole country to see the British Navy strong and powerful. The country was desirous of seeing both the army and navy capable of defending our shores, and not only that, but of protecting our world-wide commerce, and in every latitude and in every clime upholding the nation. [Loud cheers.]

His Lordship then gave the health of her Majesty's Ministers.

Sir G. C. LEWIS said: My Lord Mayor, ladies and gentlemen, in acknowledging the toast of Her Majesty's Ministers, I may be permitted to express my regret that in consequence of the necessary absence of the Noble Lord at the head of the Government, who is at present in office in attendance on Her Majesty at Windsor, and the indisposition of the Noble Lord the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the duty of acknowledging the toast falls, according to the rule of official precedence, upon myself. I am therefore called upon to discharge that duty in the presence of colleagues of far greater efficiency of power of expression. My Lord, the portion of public affairs which is most interesting to the City of London comprises our internal and domestic concerns, and I may congratulate the citizens of London upon the fact that perhaps at no previous period in the history of this country was there ever so great an amount of prosperity exhibited or enjoyed. Whether we take the great increase of revenue, the present state and condition of our trade, or look to the diminution of pauperism in the Kingdom, we still find the most gratifying evidence of the sound condition and healthy state of the national affairs. [Cheers.]

It is true that we have witnessed one untoward event, but in which the inhabitants of this metropolis have taken no slight concern—I mean the disturbance in the building trade—which I trust approaches an amicable termination of the disturbance. Her Majesty's Government have not been unconcerned spectators, while at the same time they have maintained a policy of consistent non-intervention, it having been their desire not to interfere in any question which may arise between employers and workmen, but to allow differences to settle themselves by the law of supply and demand. We trust that no system of intimidation will be attempted for the purpose of giving that interference to labor which, in the case of a trade, has already been so beneficially abolished. [Hear, hear.] My lord, it will not be expected from me to delay this company, comprising so many persons who are not politicians, with long explanations of the measures which Her Majesty's Government contemplated in the existing state of the country.

I need only say that our time has not been wasted, but that early in the ensuing session we shall be prepared to redeem the pledge we have given by the introduction of a measure for the amended representation of the people. [Loud cheers] There is another position of public affairs which is not so much under our control—that is, foreign relations. [Hear, hear.] Circumstances may occur in the condition of a foreign country which may render it impossible to preserve that undisturbed quiet and tranquility which I am happy to say has characterised our internal condition. We have seen the minister whom we sent to Peking to carry out the solemn ratifications of a treaty, met by outrage and resistance. We know he had acted literally in accordance with instructions in ascending a certain river, and that in doing so he was fired upon by the Chinese, when a disastrous loss of life occurred. It will be the duty of her Majesty's government to concert such measures in union with the Emperor of the French, as shall enable us to obtain from the Chinese Emperor compensation for the injury and full ratification of the treaty, together with any further measures which we may consider necessary for the sustentation of the national honor. [Loud cries of hear, hear.] I am afraid I shall be too warm on a subject unsuited to the present company in calling attention to those recent events on the continent which led to so sanguinary an Italian campaign; with respect to that campaign her Majesty's government have abstained from all interference, but the time may come when, the treaty having been signed, ulterior measures may be completed by the Great Powers of the continent, and when probably an invitation may be addressed to the Powers which are parties to the treaty of Vienna to join in an European Congress for the settlement of the affairs of Italy. Hitherto, I may say, no formal invitation has been addressed to us. It will be our duty to deliberate on the matter with a view to the maintenance of that principle which we consider sacred, viz: that no force shall be used for the purpose of dictating to the Italian nation the choice of its rulers, or for the purpose of coercing its people with regard to the government which they may after mature deliberation prefer. [Hear, hear.]

The recent complications on the Continent have led to the armament of the great powers of Europe, and the storm which was raised in Italy has created sympathetic disturbances in other countries. Looking to the unsettled state of Europe it would not do for us to be unprepared as regards our national defences, or to depend upon the sufferance of any other Power, however friendly, for the continuance of tranquility. [Loud cries of hear, hear.] I rejoice in being able to say that Her Majesty's Government continues to receive assurances of the most satisfactory character from all her allies. We have no reason to believe that any nation in Europe, or any other places of the world, entertains intentions of hostility toward this country. Nevertheless, looking at the feverish state of foreign countries, it becomes us to be on our guard.

We should remember, and it is satisfactory to do so, that if any real danger should occur the wealth of this country will always enable us to meet that danger in the most effective way; probable dangers there are not, but it is for possible daugers that we must provide. [Hear, hear.] And if ever that possible danger should arise her Majesty's Government will make it their duty to take measures for the protection of our shores, in the full confidence that in doing so they will have the hearty support of a great, free and generous people. [Loud cheers.] Amidst which the Right Hon. gentleman resumed his seat. Several toasts were given and the proceedings terminated at a late hour.

VIEWS OF A MINISTERIAL ORGAN.

From the London Post, (Lord Palmerston's Organ.)

The course of Italian politics during the last few days has, if we can give credence to statements of considerable authority, been marked by three events all tending to facilitate a solution at once permanent and pacific. The French Government is understood to have given such explanations respecting its future action as to diminish the distance between the conditions of Villafranca and the necessary guarantees of Italian independence. The English Government has in consequence expressed, if not a final consent at least a far greater willingness to take part in the deliberations of a Congress for the settlement of the Italian difficulties. And the Governments of Central Italy have again convoked the National Assemblies of their respective States for the purpose of formally tendering the Regency over the provinces offered to King VICTOR EMANUEL to his kinsman Prince CARIGNANO. The last of these three facts we cannot but consider as by far the most important, for after all it is by the steady and unflinching resolve of the Italians themselves that the policy of France will be mainly influenced, and the good will of England both secured and rendered efficacious.

There ought certainly to be no great difficulty in establishing a common principle of agreement between France and England as the basis of their joint resolutions in the coming Congress, if but one of the conditions in the letter of NAPOLEON III. to King VICTOR EMANUEL be faithfully carried out. Let there be only the faithful application of that principle of non-intervention which is there proclaimed respecting the States of Central Italy, and the battle may be regarded as more than half won. For it were surely monstrous to suppose that the principle of non-intervention thus proclaimed respecting relations between sovereigns and subjects which, though broken by the folly of the former, have long formed part of the public law of Europe, should be set at nought in the attempt to create different and quite unlooked-for relations—relations possessing neither the sanction derived from prescriptive rights, nor the direct and immediate titles of successful revolution. The Congress will have no easy task to determine the principles in virtue of which the Duke of Parma shall become Sovereign of Modena, or the Grand Duke of Tuscany be entitled to augment his territory at the expense of that very Papal Power on whose possessions it is declared sacrilege to trench. We can understand the theory of Governments de jure. We recognise the necessity of Governments de facto. But such an arrangement as that proposed in the case of Modena, for the realization of which it is requisite both to ignore a de jure and to overthrow a de facto Government—such an arrangement, we frankly admit, seems designed for no other end than to throw into inextricable confusion every maxim of international law, and every suggestion of plain and straightforward policy.

There is the more necessity for again declaring that the only ends for which England can take part in a Congress are those so repeatedly proclaimed by the Premier and Foreign Secretary of the present Cabinet to recognize the rights of the Italian people to self-government, and to assist in removing the obstacles by which the exercise of those rights are thwarted or delayed. All English interests in Italy may be summed up in two simple words—peace and progress. It is because there can be no lasting peace whilst the native forces of a country are crushed or neutralised by a foreign or hostile element, it is because there can be no steady progress whilst the national feelings and interests and tendencies are either ignored or trampled under foot, that the course of the English diplomacy in the Congress is traced out with such distinctness. We can be no parties to interventions against the Italian people, either direct or indirect. For it is quite possible indirectly to exercise such a moral pressure as may prolong political and create financial embarrassment, until that anarchy is at length evoked which would infallibly lead to the direct intervention by a military force.

But if, as we have reason to believe, the National Assemblies of Central Italy, again convoked to proclaim a regency, have been encouraged to take this step by the Sardinian Government; and if that Government have itself acquired the certainty that the Emperor of the French, though unable publicly to sanction such a measure, will offer to it, after all, no serious opposition, these facts are not unimportant indications that the policy of the French and English Governments is drawing closer together. Whatever tends to strengthen and encourage the friends of order throughout Central Italy cannot but be most acceptable to the two great Western Powers, which, however they may differ as to the means, are alike agreed as to the end—the necessity of laying in the Congress the foundation of a lasting peace. By what means can that peace be so soon or so easily secured as by recognizing in a fait accompli the clearly expressed wishes of the Italian people? And here we cannot refrain from again calling attention to the eloquent and convincing refutation given by the late Secretary of the Tuscan Council of State, M. LEOPOLDO GALEOTTI, to the statement that the restoration of the dethroned Princes is expedient, because they still number partisans only amongst the lowest ranks of the people. Well may he exclaim, in reply to the declaration that the rustic and urban commonalty, far from being opposed to the fallen dynasties, would gladly take them back, were not the powerful citizens and the educated classes opposed to their return—"Good Heaven! in what times do we then live, that any one should dare thus recklessly to give currency to similar coin? Ought, then, for the convenience of the pretenders, the basis of every social hierarchy to be upset and overthrown? Ought, then, the legitimate influences of order and progress to be trampled under foot for the benefit of those fallen dynasties? Ought, then, the educated classes to receive laws and government from the rabble? Would you inaugurate, perhaps, the reign of ignorance? Or would you, perchance, initiate and prepare the way for a little official communism?"

These are weighty and memorable questions, and on the answers given to them by the Congress will depend the solution of another question, whether the nineteenth century really understands and appreciates the conditions of its own civilization? They are questions not to be disposed of by mere vague appeals to the principle of legitimacy. The principle of legitimacy is excellent in its way when its applications meet the two great national wants—to satisfy which it has been, by its more intelligent advocates, accepted—the necessities of defending the State against a foreign foe, and of maintaining internal tranquility; but, unfortunately, in the case of the dethroned Italian Princes, the principle of legitimacy is found to be at direct variance with both. The rights of legitimacy, in their persons, far from warding off, invite and facilitate foreign aggression—far from assisting to maintain domestic order, are a permanent cause of civil trouble. And we may refer to the remarkable letter, to be found in another column, on the finances of the Tuscan State, for ample proofs of the fact, that even that financial credit which is the natural consequence of settled and legal government has not been found to yield the testimony to a legitimate rule which it might fairly have been expected to supply. The Tuscan capitalists, and bankers, and merchants have accorded to the present Provisional Government a confidence which they obstinately withheld from the Grand Duke, who held his crown in virtue of a dozen European treaties!

FRANCE.

The monthly returns of the Bank of France show a decrease in the cash on hand of nearly nineteen millions of francs.

The Moniteur of the 9th publishes a dispatch from Gen. MARTIMPREY, addressed to the Minister of War, and dated near Zekkora, Nov. 6.

Gen. DEVAUX, with two divisions, attacked the Zekkora, and forced the tribes to retire towards the South. Gen. DEVAUX, by skillful manœuvering, obtained a victory over the tribes equally as brilliant as the victory of Malah. In addition to a great quantity of booty, the horses and arms of the Spahis who had been killed at Sidi-Raer were retaken. The troops are in excellent health, and spread terror everywhere before them, and the people implore their mercy.

Private accounts state that when the order was given to the Second Zouaves to advance they had lost 300 men by the cholera, and a considerable number were in a hopeless state.

Late accounts say that the disease was abating.

The coast defences of Algeria were said to be occupying the serious attention of the French Government.

According to the Paris Correspondent of the London Times, the China expedition was rapidly gaining favor in both services in France. The total effectiveness of the French corps d'armée it is now stated will amount to 20,000 men, and they are not expected to reach China before April or May next.

It is reported that the new French Mintster of the Interior has resolved not to continue the prosecution of M. DE MONTALEMBERT, for his article published in the Correspondant, but to maintain the seizure of the work, and thus prevent its fur her circulation. It is rumored, too, that the prosecution of M. EDMOND ABOUT'S Question Romaine has been abandoned, and indeed that it was only commenced for form's sake, as the Government could not allow public revelations of the sanction which was given in high quarters to the publication of the book.

On reliable information, it is stated that the question of the Isthmus of Suez will be discussed at the approaching Congress.

The Paris Bourse was steady; Rentes closed on the 11th at 70.15.

AUSTRIA.

In opposition to the assertions of Sardinian journals that the number of emigrants from Venetia exceeded forty thousand, an official communication reduces this number to a little more than two thousand. It was stated that the Council of the Empire was in course of being transformed into a Senate, which will control the administration of the finance of the country. Decrees will shortly be issued granting to the Jews additional political and social privileges.

VIENNA, Tuesday, Nov. 8.

The Schiller festival has been celebrated here to-day in a most brilliant manner, in presence of immense crowds of people.

The torch-light processions were numerous and well attended; the greatest order and enthusiasm prevailed throughout the town. The weather was exceedingly fine until towards the conclusion of the festival, when rain fell, but not, however, in any considerable quantity.

During the celebration of the SCHILLER festival several popular demonstrations of a liberal character had taken place.

THE AUSTRIAN FINANCIAL FRAUD.

Correspondence of the London Times.

VIENNA, Friday, Nov. 2.

Baron BRUCK has never attempted to palliate his conduct in the National Loan affair, but an ill-advised inhabitant of this city has now undertaken his defence in the Frankfort Actionary. The account given by the Austrian writer of the circumstances which led to the clandestine issue of National Loan Bonds of the nominal value of £11,000,000, is so absurd that it must have been published without the knowledge of Baron BRUCK. The Frankfort capitalists are told that when the State and the Bank regulated their affairs in 1855 a certain sum was set apart for the redemption of the State notes then in circulation. "Shortly after the redemption of the said notes had begun," says the Vienna correspondent, "it came to light that one description (eine ganze sorte) of State paper money had been entirely overlooked (übersehen.) The nominal value of these was about 60,000,000fl., and it was necessary to raise that sum in order that the Bank might be made solvent. At the moment it was impossible to negotiate a new loan, and therefore the Minister of Finance had recourse to the expedient—a desperate one, it is true—of a secret loan. The National Loan obligations which were in excess of the 500,000fl. passed into the hands of "certain foreign capitalists," and were to have been repurchased at stipulated periods, and destroyed. As the war deranged all Baron BRUCK'S plans, he considered himself bound to make known to the public the exact state of affairs. "The error which rendered the secret loan necessary," continues the apologist of the Minister, "was made by an employe in the Finance Department, who had previously rendered such eminent service to the State that Baron BRUCK considered himself bound in honor to take the blame on his own shoulders."

To the foregoing statement there are two objections, which must occur to every one who may read it. The one is, that it is well nigh impossible to make an error in calculation to the amount of 60,000,000fl., and the other, that State balance-sheets and documents of a similar description are rarely or never the work of one man's hands. In the opinion of the public, the story told in the Frankfort paper is of the genus "cock and bull," but if it should be true, it affords a proof that the financial part of the business of the State is done in a most careless and slovenly way. A Cabinet Council—at which the Emperor generally presides—has been held day after day during the last week, but the question relative to the control over the finances is not definitely settled. It is stated that Baron BRUCK strongly advises the Emperor not to consent to a popular control, "as such a concession would be attended with danger." Dangerous or not dangerous, the step must be taken, for no foreigner in his senses will either touch Austrian stock or lend Austria money until men enjoying the full confidence of the nation have a clear insight into, and an effective control over, the administration of the finances.

PRUSSIA.

The Prussian Gazette publishes an article of which the following is a summary:

"The Allgemeine Zeitung insists on its statement that the interview between the Emperor of Russia and the Prince Regent of Prussia had a tendency hostile to England. The same paper pretends that Prussia had entered upon the policy of France and Russia to isolate England, and had promised to maintain an unconditional neutrality in case war should be declared by France against England. In order to support these absurd insinuations, the Allgemeine Zeitung refers to the imaginary statements of some Prussian newspapers, which are known to be long to the opposition Press, and which have a self-understood interest to disfigure every step of the Government for the sake of obtaining a basis for attacks against it. The writers of the Allgemeine Zeitung place themselves, by their conduct, on the same footing with certain French journals, which in translating the malevolent conjectures of the Prussian opposition Press transformed them into positive facts. These tactics may be considered ingenious, but are hardly patriotic or useful to the interests of Germany."

SPAIN AND MOROCCO.

The blockade of the coast of Morocco had been commenced by Spanish men-of-war.

The latest advices from Gibraltar state that heavy firing had been heard in the direction of Tangier and Ceuta.

Jews and Christians were being fully protected from insult, and severe punishment was threatened for any offence against their property. Large numbers of fugitives continued to arrive at Gibraltar.

LATEST.

A Madrid dispatch of the 11th says: "Yesterday the Moors, with a force of 1,000 men, continued their attack upon Ceuta. The besieged were preparing to make a sortie to repulse them. The Cortes has been prorogued for one week.

WESTERN COAST OF AFRICA.

Dates from the principal points on the West Coast of Africa are one month later, but there is no news of importance.

The British war steamer Spitfire had taken a fine prize, with 500 slaves on board. Other slavers were being watched.

The health of the Coast was generally favorable, and at most places business was improving.

Liberia dates from Cape Palmas, Oct. 16, state that the royal mail-ship Ethiope arrived at 9 A. M., and sailed for leeward at 3 P. M., 16th inst.; all well on board. In the roads, Lizzie Dransfield, of Liverpool, from Fernando Po. Pomona, of Liverpool, reported off Carally on the 3d inst.; 43 days out from Liverpool; all well.

CHINA.

HONG KONG, Wednesday, Sept. 28, 1859.

No events of political importance have occurred in the last fortnight.

The ratification of the American Treaty has produced no change in commercial matters.

We learn that the Taku forts have been repaired and strengthened, and the general bearing of the Chinese leads to the belief that they contemplate resistance.

His Excellency Hon. FREDERICK BRUCE remains at Shanghai. Admiral HOPE is still at Lookong.

Hon. JOHN WARD, American Minister, has gone to Japan, where matters remain in an unsettled state. Twelve Russian ships of war are at Yeddo. Three men belonging to this force have been murdered, and serious consequences are not improbable.

It is rumored that, though the American Treaty has been ratified by the Emperor, it has been notified to his exc lency Mr. WARD that it will not be allowed to come into force until some arrangement has been made with the French and British ministers. If true, this is not to be wondered at, as, otherwise, many awkward complications might arise. In noticing the refusal to give the American minister an audience with the Emperor, on the ground that the minister would not bend on one knee, we omitted to mention that the Chinese had before them the precedent of the British minister Earl MACARTNEY, who, in 1792, knelt on one knee to the Emperor of China; and also that we are not aware of the American treaty containing any special provision for an audience with his Celestial Highness.

In Cochin China fresh hostilities have been commenced by the Anamese, who attacked the French intrenchments, and were repulsed with loss.

THE REGENCY OF PRINCE CARIGNAN.

PARIS, Saturday, Nov. 12.

The Moniteur of this morning says the different Assemblies of the Central Italian States have agreed to offer the Regency to Prince CARIGNAN. This resolution is to be regretted, especially under the present circumstances of the approaching assembling of an European Congress, called to deliberate on the affairs of Italy, because it tends to prejudge questions which must there be settled.

The Daily News has received the following dispatch:

PARIS, Friday Night.

The news that the King of Sardinia has refused to authorize the Prince CARIGNAN'S acceptance of the Regency is false. All that is known is, that France has formally counseled Sardinia to refuse. The King's answer is not yet known.

In a leader the Daily News says: "This contradiction was necessary to prevent a most serious degradation of Piedmont in the eyes of freemen all over the world. There is still room to hope that the Ministers of the King may yet make up their minds to embrace a wise and independent policy, and not gibbet themselves as carrying out the behests of a foreign sovereign."

The Times on the same topic says, there is an earthly Providence which knows better what is good for Italy than Italy knows herself. But for VICTOR EMANUEL to be conscious of being an instrument of intrigues for ruining a sacred and beloved cause, this is hard to be endured, and it is tyranny to inflict it.

If NAPOLEON III. will not let Central Italy have the Prince CARIGNAN, she may possibly at last bethink her whether she has no man of the Washington stamp among her sons, and she may turn her eyes upon GARIBALDI.

CASE OF DR. SMETHURST.

The Times and Daily News state that a writ of habeas corpus was yesterday received by the Governor of Horsemonger-lane Jail for the removal of the prisoner to the custody of the Police, upon the charge of bigamy, and he will be brought up this (Saturday) morning at Southwark Police Court on that charge.

LONDON, Saturday, Nov. 12.

There is more firmness to-day in the Stock Exchange in consequence of the definitive signature of the treaty of peace at Zurich. The aspirations of the Moniteur for the speedy meeting of a Congress was attracting attention.

The decline of ⅛@¼ ₱ cent. which took place yesterday in Consols, has accordingly been recovered, most other securities were likewise strong. The supply of money in commercial channels was rather more liberal, but there are still exceptional transactions below the Bank minimum.

There were no bullion transactions at the Bank to-day.

The Eastern Question to be Revived.

Correspondence of the London Times.

PARIS, Sunday, Nov. 6, 1859.

Official people here think that there is little doubt of England taking part in the Congress, and that there is a disposition on both sides to remove some of the difficulties which hitherto have been in the way. It is rumored that Italian interests are not the only subject that will occupy the attention of the Congress of Brussels, but that the long-vexed question of the East will be again brought before the Plenipotentiaries. It is not forgetten that when it was first known that a treaty, or Convention, or understanding of some serious kind existed between France and Russia, Prince GORTSCHAKOFF admitted that there was, in fact, a written instrument between the two Governments, but that it contained nothing prejudicial to the interests of England. If Parliament were sitting, it would be worth while for some one to put a question to the Government as to whether that Convention, admitted to be signed by France and Russia, relates in any way to the creation of an independent Slave kingdom, comprising Bosnia, Servia and Bulgaria, and perhaps other points, with a population of from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000? The scheme is not a new one, but it is said that it has been resuscitated with certain modifications, and Russia does not feel offended by having an "independent" State lying between her and the Balkan, which on this plan would form the new northern boundary of the Sultan's dominions in Europe; for what has been done recently with respect to the Principalities has greatly reduced his authority there. The Emperor of the French is known to have perhaps more than once expressed his opinions on the condition of Turkey, and those opinions but slightly differ from the view taken by the Emperor NICHOLAS in his famous conversation with Sir HAMILTON SEYMOUR. The creation of a Slave kingdom in the manner alluded to would, of course, be the dismemberment of Turkey, to prevent which we made war. The Emperor ALEXANDER has probably pretty much the same opinion of Turkey as his father, and the Emperor NAPOLEON is not likely to change his, on a subject which has certainly occupied his thoughts for the last two or three years. How the independent Slave State would end it requires no extraordinary acuteness to guess. In the meantime Russia, and perhaps France, are of the opinion that this kingdom, lying between Russia and Turkey, would not fail to tranquilize Europe on the alleged aggressive policy of the Muscovite. If our Government have discovered any other solution of Prince GORTSCHAKOFF'S words they may be tempted to give it; if not, they might not object to state whether they think the present a plausible one. I do not, of course, guarantee the authenticity of this version, but, as it has been spoken of by persons here who profess to some acquaintance with Russian politics, there can be no harm in mentioning it.

The English Press on the Present State of Mexico.

From the London Post, (Lord Palmerston's Organ.)

We now turn to the question of the condition of Mexico itself. There certainly appears reason to hope that a ture of any Commonwealth. It becomes you well to consider the importance of all your actions. It is not the mere exigencies of the present which you are to meet, but your work will give a cast and character to the whole future of this country. The foresight and calm deliberation of the sage will be required in the first molding of the laws and institutions of our embryo State. The eyes of the Union are upon us, and there are those ever ready to criticise every step which may be taken amiss; let us then not underrate the importance of the task before us, but go to work like true citizens and patriots devoted first and last to the well-being of our country.

The developments of the past season have conclusively proven that the gold mines will yield immense treasures to our enterprising citizens, and the explorations which have been carried on so indefatigably in every gulch and cañon extending even over the Snowy Range, open up a field for future industry of immense extent.

Then with the mines of silver, iron, copper, lead, coal and the quarries of limestone, marble, gypsum, grit and other useful products of the mineral kingdom furnishes a guaranty of future wealth unsurpassed by any country.

That it will be your early care to protect the miner in his arduous labors and secure him the fruits of his toils I supremely trust.

The agricultural and horticultural resources of this country have been this season sufficiently developed to warrant us in believing that the cereals and other vegetable productions of this latitude may be very successfully and profitably cultivated. Any legislation which may tend to encourage the agriculturist should receive attention.

It will become your duty to establish a civil and criminal code of practice, to be plain, certain and easy of construction, which will afford to the party aggrieved, a speedy, impartial, and adequate remedy.

The criminal law should be plain in its specification of crimes, with penalties that can be inflicted, attached to each offence; as it is the certainty of punishment that causes the law to be obeyed and respected.

I would recommend a statute providing for miners' courts, by giving jurisdiction of cases wherein mining interests are at stake, to certain officers, with the right of jury trial, and appeal to the District Court; and that all courts, whether of original or appellate jurisdiction, shall be bound to recognize the laws of the mining district where the property in litigation is situated.

As a general law for the regulation of miners' interests that would operate equally on all, I would recommend the action of "forcible entry and detainer," as being a remedy generally understood by the courts and lawyers of the country.

By article 6, section 4, of the Organic act, it will be found to be your duty to divide the Territory into three judicial districts, and assign the judges to their respective districts.

You will also find in article 8, section 1, of the Organic act, that you are required to provide some manner of defraying the expenses of the Provisional Government; this, perhaps, is the most difficult part of your labors. But it is to be hoped that all our citizens will recognize the importance of some well-regulated government for the protection of our persons, our families, and our property, and that they will willingly support such an organization. Therefore I would recommend to your honorable bodies that a poll-tax, not exceeding one dollar, be collected between the first day of June and the first day of July next. Also a small revenue might be obtained from licenses granted to places of amusement.

It is very necessary you should provide the Territory with a stringent election law to cover all cases of fraud. It will suffice for me to call your attention to this point as the history of our past elections already show the want of such a law.

At the election held on the 24th of October, it will be seen that there were elected a Governor, Secretary, Attorney-General, a Chief Justice, two Associate Justices, a Marshal, Auditor, a Treasurer, a Clerk of the Supreme Court and a Superintendent of Public Instruction. It will be your duty to define more particularly and specifically the powers and duties of some of these officers, while of others it will be necessary to define their duties in full.

It will devolve upon you to organize the Territory into Counties, and locate their county seats; in all cases observing the convenience of the settlers.

All officers who may have either monies or other important trusts committed to their charge, should, by statute, be required to file with some officer specified, a good and sufficient bond, conditioned that they will faithfully perform the duties of their office according to law.

As you have much labor before you at the present session, I would call your attention to the fact that it would be well to avoid, as much as possible, special legislation; but provide by general laws for the incorporation of all bodies, whether corporations for pecuniary profit, or Municipal Governments.

The evil of too much special legislation is one which Western legislators are very prone to run into, thereby neglecting very important laws of a general character; when once the door is thrown open to this abuse of legislatorial power, it is very difficult to check it. It is therefore hoped, that your course on this subject will be a conservative one.

You will at all times recognize the constitutional authority and power of the United States Government over us. The right of petitioning and memorializing Congress is indisputably yours here as in any other portion of the Union,

To the General Government we are required to look for the extinguishment of the Indian title to the lands of this Territory, for the establishment of mails and mail routes to the principal and important towns of the Territory, with such branches as the population of the country may demand. Also for the construction of military roads and bridges, and for the establishment of a sufficient number of forts and magazines at such places as will afford the greatest protection to our citizens.

Many other subjects of importance and legitimate legislation will from time time arise during your session, which it is impossible at this time to foresee; you are aware that the wants of our citizens demand an immediate action on your part for the adoption of a systematized code of laws.

Thousands of our citizens have returned to their homes in the States for the purpose of returning with their families and friends early next Spring, and a great necessity of some definite rule of law in this Territory is admitted by all to exist at this time; then how much more so will it be needed during the coming Spring and Summer, when our population will probably be swelled to one hundred thousand, all eager to push their fortunes in any avocation that promises the greatest remuneration.

Let us, then, enter upon our duties with a determination of spirit that conquers all difficulties; working for the benefit of the whole Commonwealth, encouraging moderation and conservatism in all our acts, that we may never be ashamed of having taken a humble part in the organization of a Provisional Government for the Territory of Jefferson.

R. W. STEELE, Governor.

DENVER, Nov. 7, 1859.

FROM ARIZONA.

Mexican and American Affairs on the Frontier.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

TUBAC, A. T., Thursday, Nov. 2, 1859.

The Indian campaign is somewhat interfered with by the dispatches received, sending "an officer of distinction" to inform Gov. PESQUIERA that Capt. STONE'S party was to carry out their contract with the grantees, JECKER & Co., and that they would be sustained by our Government.

STONE'S party was organized under a contract with JECKER & Co., of the City of Mexico, who had acquired the right from the Juarez Government to make a survey of the public lands in Sonora, conditional to receiving a portion for such survey. PESQUIERA, the present Governor of Sonora, having an eye to the main chance, "gain," sent STONE'S party out, assuming they were kind of fillibusters.

Capt. STONE, a gentleman well calculated to sustain himself and his company, from the fact of having been an officer of high rank in our army, was not to be driven off without reasonable resistance on his part. He at once laid his grievances before the Administration, who could do no less than sustain him.

The result is that Capt. EWELL, of the Dragoons, is directed to inform Gov. PESQUIERA that Capt. STONE will be protected by our Government in carrying out the contract of JECKER & Co. What the result will be time will only disclose. The impression is that when the Governor finds STONE is to be sustained by the United States Government, he will allow him and his party to make the surveys as commenced. At present the party is in camp near the line awaiting result of negotiations. Capt. E. left on his mission this morning.

Gov. PESQUIERA is a man of ability—is ambitious for power—yet I am under the impression that he will do nothing that will have a tendency to bring down upon him our Government. While he is a Liberalist and supporter of the Juarez Government, he claims Sonora by a kind of preemption.

This country is now quiet—no Indian troubles, and very little Mexican thieving.

We are informed that a few troops are coming in via Fort Yuma. We have no idea of the number, but presume 'tis two companies of the 1st Dragoons, as they belong to this department, the Colonel (FONTLEROY) having succeeded Col. BONNEVILLE as Department Commander. B.

A RELIGIOUS RIOT IN MASSACHUSETTS.—We learn from the Abington Standard that a series of disgraceful disturbances occurred in East Abington last week. It appears that Rev. MOSES CHASE, of Duxbury, has been holding a series of meetings in the Methodist Church, which he has conducted in such a manner as to gain the ill-will of a portion of his hearers. On Wednesday evening a party of the dissatisfied ones, about a dozen in number, surrounded the house of Mr. DAVID CUSHING, and called for Mr. CHASE to come out and pray for them. That gentleman was not in the house, however, and they were requested to leave. They replied by insulting remarks, but, after staving in one of the panels of the door, departed. Of their subsequent doings a correspondent of the Standard says: "As Rev. Messrs. CHASE and ROBINSON were returning from meeting on Thursday night, they were assailed and insulted, but escaped without injury. On Friday night they were less fortunate. A party of rowdies followed Rev. Mr. CHASE with a rail, which they vainly attempted to compel him to straddle, probably intending to carry him home, as he was somewhat injured by the stones which they had thrown at him. Rotten eggs were used, and one of these strong smelling arguments took effect on Rev. Mr. ROBINSON'S coat. Stones were freely used, causing some injury to the recipients."

SINGULAR WILL CASE—EMANCIPATING SLAVES.—An interesting will case has been before the Greene County Court of Common Pleas for two weeks past. RICHARD RANDOLPH, a relative of the famous JOHN RANDOLPH, of Roanoke, died in Greene County, Ohio, last year. By his will he bequeathed all his property, valued at about $75,000, to his executor, WM. KNOTT, to be applied to purchasing the freedom of all the living slaves of the Randolph family in Virginia. VICTOR RANDOLPH, a brother of the deceased, living in Virginia, is trying to break the will, on the ground of the alleged insanity of the deceased. The case was fully investigated, and the jury returned a verdict sustaining the will.

LAW REPORTS.

General Sessions.

TRIAL OF CHARLES MOORE FOR MURDER—SPRINCE DENIED A NEW TRIAL.

At the opening of Court, yesterday morning, ex-Recorder Smith moved to have the verdict in the case of Sprince, the noted receiver of stolen goods, recently convicted of that offence, set aside, on the ground that the conviction was inconsistent with the evidence.

Judge RUSSELL denied the motion, and ordered Sprince to be brought up on Wednesday next for sentence.

William Mulloy, indicted for grand larceny, pleaded guilty to petit larceny, and was sentenced to three months in the City Prison.

Aaron McNair pleaded guilty to an attempt to commit grand larceny, and was sentenced to the Penitentiary for two years.

Charles Moore was then placed on trial, charged with the murder of Daniel Stackpole, at Harlem, on the 18th November, 1858. He was defended by James T. Brady, Esq.

On the day in question the "Fox Musketeers," a target company belonging to the First Ward, went to Harlem on an excursion, and shot for prizes, dining afterwards at the River House. A difficulty had previously arisen between them and the members of another First Ward company, called the "Brady Guards," so named—not after the distinguished counsel defending the prisoner—but Ex-Alderman Brady, of that Ward. The deceased, Daniel Stackpole, with some of his friends, followed the Fox Musketeers to Harlem, and after the latter had dined at the River House, contrived to create a disturbance, during which Moore, the prisoner of yesterday, was struck by Stackpole. Moore's friends gathered around him. Stackpole ran. Moore's friends pursued him, Moore accompanying them. Stackpole ran towards the river, and was stabbed by Thompson with a bayonet, and (as alleged) by Moore with a sword. He was taken to the Station-house, and died in fifteen minutes.

In February last Thompson was tried before Recorder BARNARD on this charge, James T. Brady defending him. The trial lasted three days, and was fully reported in the TIMES. The jury found him guilty, and he was sentenced to three years and six months in the State Prison.

The trial of Moore as coadjutor in the same offence has been deferred till the present time, during which interval he has been on bail. The Court sat late last night, and will renew the trial this morning.

Interesting to Shippers.

WHAT IS A DELIVERY SUFFICIENT TO GIVE TITLE TO PURCHASER.

The Western Transportation Company vs. Myers & Ree and others.—This is an action before Justice CLERKE at the Circuit of the Supreme Court, which involves questions of importance to dealers in and shippers of produce.

It appears that in September, 1857, the plaintiffs were the owners of 400 bushels of wheat which they had authorized their brokers, Messrs. Tuttles, Cutting & Co. to negotiate for sale in the market, for cash on delivery. The brokers made a contract or agreement with Meyers & Ree, who were to purchase the wheat for cash as stipulated; and in pursuance of the sale the wheat was delivered on board the ship Great Western, then lying at this port, and about to sail for Liverpool. It is claimed by the plaintiffs that the wheat still remained in their possession, and was only deposited in the hold of the Great Western, subject to their own order, there to remain until they received their money for it. They also claim and allege that the defendants, Meyer & Ree, while the wheat was in process of delivery, induced the owners of the ship to make out a bill of lading for it, which bill of lading they, Meyer & Ree, negotiated to the defendants, the Messrs. Morgan, as collateral security for a draft upon a firm in London, drawn by Meyer & Ree, and discounted by the Morgans. Plaintiffs further allege that Meyer & Ree then gave their (plaintiffs') brokers a check for about $5,600 in payment for the wheat, on the Merchants' Bank. The plaintiffs then allege that this check was dishonored at the bank, and that Meyer & Ree that day failed, and have remained insolvent ever since. They also aver that Meyer & Ree had pretended to purchase about $25,000 worth of property in the same way, and had in the same manner realized. The defendants, Meyer & Ree, deny all the allegations of the complaint, and aver that therein was no fraud. The other defendants say that if Meyer & Ree were guilty of fraud, they should be made responsible therefor, and not such parties as had been made victims without notice, or occasion to suspect fraud. The case is still on, but goes over until Monday.

John Hubbell and Charles Tracy, for plaintiffs; Butler, Evarts & Southmayd, for defendants; Morgan Barney, Butler and Parsons, for defendants Marshall, Truber & Thodd; H. Lane, for defendants Meyer & Ree.

The Transit Company Difficulties.

WHAT SHALL BE DONE WITH THE STEAMSHIPS?

Murray, Receiver of the Accessory Transit Company, vs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.—This is the action brought against the defendant, to set aside a sale by him of certain steamships, alleged to have belonged to the Company, and to cancel certain mortgages made upon the property by the defendant, which are alleged to have been fraudulently given. The answer of the defendant denies all the charges in the complaint, and avers that he always acted in good faith in all matters concerning the Company. Motion was now made before Justice STRONG, at Chambers, for an open Commission, to take testimony of certain witnesses in California and Nicaragua. The motion was made on the part of the defendant, and opposed by the plaintiff with a long affidavit, alleging a great many harsh things, and among others that the Commodore was indebted to the Company about $143,000. It opposed the motion on the ground that the Commission would only delay the result of the action without material benefit to any one.

After the affidavit was read, defendant's counsel asked that his motion lie over until Tuesday next, to give opportunity to answer it by a counter affidavit; and after some argument it was so postponed.

Horace F. Clark for the commission. John Sherwood and Henry A. Cram opposed.

Dismissal of Appeals.

WHAT ORDERS ARE APPEALABLE.

The Tyrone and Lock Haven Railroad Company vs. Allen Schenck.—This was an appeal to the General Term, before Justices ROOSEVELT, SUTHERLAND and MULLEN, from an order of Justice Ingraham, made at Special Term, denying the motion to discharge the defendant from arrest; and also from an order made by Judge Dawles, at Special Term, denying the motion to dismiss the complaint, on the ground that the plaintiffs were a foreign corporation, and had neglected to file security for costs. The first of these orders was made on August 4, and the second on September 9.

Counsel for the plaintiffs moved to dismiss the appeal from the first order on the ground that it was not made within thirty days from the time the order was entered, and because the defendant had been a second time heard since that order was entered, and the order was at such time confirmed. The second order, it was contended, was not an appealable order, it being merely an order granting leave to substitute a perfect bond for an imperfect one. Judge Edmonds contended that no order at Special Term as to costs was appealable. He could find no precedent or provision that would allow an appeal from such orders. The appeal in both cases was dismissed.

J. W. Edmonds and E. D. Sherwood for the motion to dismiss; Mr. James and Levi S. Chatfield opposed.

The Gate-House Contest Again.

RENEWAL OF THE MOTION FOR AN INJUNCTION.

The People vs. The Mayor, &c.—This controversy was again before Justice STRONG, at Chambers, on a renewal of the motion for an injunction to restrain the Common Council from granting the contract to Walker, Fairchild & Co. A further affidavit of the attorney of Baldwin & Jaycox was read, to the effect that he had inspected the papers and records set forth in the complaint, and that from such examination he was satisfied the complaint was true. Counsel for respondents contended that the papers were substantially the same as those upon which the motion was made before Justice Ingraham, and that they added no new facts to those before the Court on the former motion. He also denied the right of the Attorney-General to bring the suit, and claimed that the action of the Common Council in the premises was fair and just, and clearly within the scope of their power; and further, that Fairchild, Walker & Co., really had the contract for the gate-houses by their previous contract to build the Reservoir.

The argument has been continued for a day or so, and was now concluded.

The Court took the papers and reserved decision.

H. Sheldon and D. D. Field for Attorney-General; R. Busteed and Luther R. Marsh for the Corporation.

Decisions.

SUPREME COURT, CHAMBERS.

STRONG, J.—Bowery Fire Insurance Company vs. Haley.—The Court cannot properly, upon these papers, adjudge that the petition is entitled to the surplus moneys, and grant the order applied for. The petition must therefore be denied.

Seymour vs. Deif ndorf et al.—Petition denied.

Flostroy vs. Flostroy.—Injunction modified so as to apply only to the house and lot in Tenth-street—the farm at Boiling Springs, and the furniture which belonged to the plaintiff, on the defendant paying the $250 ordered to be paid by the order of 10th November, which he is permitted to do out of the moneys on deposit in the Seamans' Savings Bank. Order to be settled on motion.

AFFAIRS IN NEWFOUNDLAND.—The dates from St. John's are to Nov. 9, two days after the general election, but the returns from the two or three districts, wherin the real contest is to be fought, had not arrived, so that it is not possible to say whether the present Government has been extended four years longer, or a more truly Liberal Government chosen. The Roman Catholic Bishop had taken legal proceedings against the editor of one of the St. John's papers, the Ledger, for some animadversions upon the conduct of his lordship in reference to the encroachments of the French upon the coast of the island. The weather during the previous fortnight had been very stormy, wet and unsettled, retarding considerably the business of loading fish. Many Labrador vessels had made their appearance off St. John's, but owing to the heavy northerly gales prevailing, had been compelled to seek shelter in harbors to the southward, being unable to enter St. John's. The Terra-Novians were in the enjoyment of excellent sleighing at the latest dates. We observe, amongst a lot of articles advertised to be sold at auction, belonging to the Atlantic Telegraph Company, a number of iron bedsteads.—Boston Traveller.

HIGH PRIVATES IN THE VIRGINIA MILITIA.—Among the Virginia volunteers who passed through Washington on Sunday, was Mr. O. JENNINGS WISE, a private in Company F, First Regiment, and in the detachment under Col. WISE[illegible], Hon. ROGER A. PRYOR, member elect to the next Congress. Is serving as a private in the Petersburgh Grays. He had originally belonged to that corps, but on coming to Washington resigned, and rejoined only on Saturday evening, for the supposed emergency.

Corn Meal is selling at $4 @ $4 05 for new and old Jersey and Pennsylvania, $4 30 for Baltimore, and $4 35 @ $4 40 for Brandywine, ℔ bbl.

GRAIN—Wheat has also been very favorably affected by the news per Circassian. The demand from shippers has been brisk. Speculators have also manifested a disposition to purchase freely. The inquiry from millers has been restricted. Prices are decidedly higher. We have heard of sales of 72,100 bushels,—including White Canada on private terms; strictly prime to choice White Michigan, at $1 50 @ $1 53; very good red Western (Winter), at $1 40; fair to very superior Milwaukee Club, at $1 20 @ $1 25, chiefly at $1 20 @ $1 23; fair to very good Chicago Spring, at $1 16 @ $1 18; prime White Kentucky, part at $1 53; White Southern on terms not ascertained; and good red do., at $1 40 ℔ bushel. Corn has been purchased to the extent of 16,500 bushels, at 76c. @ 85c. for inferior to good new crop yellow Jersey and Southern; 98c. (nominally) for old mixed Western; and 99c. @ $1 for old yellow Jersey and Southern ℔ bush. Rye has improved, with sales of 9,000 bushels, at 88c. @ 90c., chiefly at 90c. ℔ bushel. Of Barley—the reported sales do not exceed a few small lots of State and Canada East, at 76c. @ 83c. ℔ bush. Oats are less sought after, including Canada, at 47c. @ 48c.; Western, at 46½c. @ 47½c.; State, at 47c. @ 47½c.; Jersey and Pennsylvania, 42½c. @ 45c.; and Southern, at 40c. @ 44c., ℔ bushel. Mr. WM. G. CURTIS notices the week's business in the principal kinds of Breadstuffs, thus: "During most of the week, low medium brands of State and Western Flour, especially superfine and extra grades of State, have been in good demand, chiefly to supply the wants of the regular Eastern and local trade, though, in part, for export and on speculation. Prices of these descriptions have steadily favored sellers. Other qualities have been in moderate request, at essentially unaltered figures. Thursday having been generally observed as Thanksgiving-day, no business was transacted. Yesterday, a brisk inquiry prevailed for State brands, particularly for extra. Shippers purchased most freely. Speculators, also, bought pretty liberally. Prices advanced at least 10c. @ 15c. ℔ bbl. Superfine State and shipping brands of extra Ohio also improved, having been more sought after. The better grades were not so actively dealt in, and the rise in prices of such was not very important. On Saturday of last week Wheat was quiet and depressed. Monday and Tuesday the inquiry was good, partly on speculation and for shipment, and prices improved. The transactions on Wednesday were limited. Heavy receipts had the effect of lessening the disposition to buy freely. Holders, however, were very firm. Yesterday, encouraged by the favorable news from Liverpool by the Circassian, shippers and speculators, especially the former, purchased Spring Wheat extensively. Prices advanced materially. The market closed buoyantly. The demand from millers was not active. The total sales of wheat during the week have been 163,500 bushels. Included in the sales were three boat-loads of superior Northern Wisconsin Club, bought yesterday at $1 23 @ $1 25 ℔ bushel. The bulk of the sales of Milwaukee Club was effected at $1 20, and of Chicago Spring at $1 16 ℔ bushel."

HAY—Sales, to-day, 600 bales North River at 75c. @ 80c. ℔ 100 lbs.

HIDES—The market has been quite active this week, importers having shown more disposition to meet the views of buyers. At the close, however, Buenos Ayres Hides are freely offered at 23c., but not sought after at this rate. Receipts continue large, comprising, for the week, 96,000. Sales 39,000, leaving a stock in first hands of 264,200 Hides. The principal sales have been 12,000 Orinoco, 21c., 6 months; 2,000 Buenos Ayres, 23½c., 7 months; 3,700 Maracaibo, 20c., 6 months; 1,200 Tampico, 20c., 6 months; 1,000 Matamoras, 20c., 6 months; 1,500 Chagres, 20½c., 6 months; 1,600 Porto Cabello, private terms; 1,400 Mexican, 19

NEWS OF THE DAY.

By the Africa we have confirmation of the intelligence that the Central Italian States have agreed to offer the Regency to Prince Carignan. The Moniteur considers that this decision is to be regretted, as it tends to prejudge questions which must be settled in the proposed European Congress. It was positively known that France had counseled the King of Sardinia to refuse to authorize the acceptance of the Regency by the Prince, but the statement that the King had complied with this advice was decidedly contradicted. The London Daily News holds this denial to be necessary to prevent a most serious degradation of Piedmont in the eyes of freemen all over the world, while the Times gives vent to the sarcasm, "There is an earthly Providence which knows what is better for Italy than Italy herself knows." It condemns the attempt to make Victor Emanuel the instrument of intrigues for ruining the cause which he has most at heart, and says that if Napoleon will not let Central Italy have Prince Carignan, she may yet turn her eyes upon Garibaldi, who stands among her sons as a man of the Washington stamp.

At the time the steamer Indian struck the sealedge near Maria Joseph, last Monday, she had on board 38 passengers, a crew of 100 men, 800 tons of cargo, and some specie. Within half an hour after the shock, the vessel parted amidships; one boat was capsized, another dashed in alongside, several lives were lost, and two more boats, with part of the passengers and crew, drifted to sea and have not since been heard of. The schooner Alexander—the first to render assistance—arrived at Halifax on the 24th, with 24 persons on board. The schooner Loutca was totally wrecked in endeavoring to render aid to the Indian. The exact loss of life is not known, but it is to be feared that it is much heavier than was conveyed by the first reports.

From our correspondent at San Francisco, we have further details of news from the Pacific coast, a brief outline of which has already been received by telegraph. There had been a serious fire at the mountain mining town of Volcano, Amador county, which, breaking out in an unoccupied building, spread with great rapidity, laying, in less than an hour, the entire business portion of the place in ashes, and involving a loss of from $50,000 to $75,000. The rich diggings at the Washoe Gold and Silver Mines form a topic of excited comment. The surface diggings yield from $10 to $100 per day to the hand. Strangers are cautioned not to rush too precipitately to the scene. There is complaint among the San Franciscans at the operation of the new ocean mail contract. An excellent stage road has been discovered between San Diego and Fort Yuma, by which the trip can be made in two days.

The arrival of Gen. Scott at Portland, Oregon, is announced by the Overland Mail. His reception was enthusiastic. Notice of his coming had been given, the steamer bearing him having touched at a point lower down the coast, from which word was forwarded. Gen. Harney, it is reported, retired from his command with undisguised disgust and anger. A dispatch received from Gen. Scott, at the War Department, reports that the proposition he was instructed to make to Gov. Douglass had been presented, and would doubtless be accepted. The nature of the proposal is undivulged.

The Indian campaign in Arizona has been interfered with by dispatches which order Capt. Ewell, of the Dragoons, to inform Pesquiera that Capt. Stone will be protected by our Government, in carrying out the contract which he made with Jecker & Co., to survey the lands of the Territory on condition of receiving a portion of them. Capt. Ewell left on his mission on the 2d inst., and there is little doubt but that he will be successful in his mission.

The anniversary of the evacuation of New-York by the British army in 1783, was celebrated yesterday with much spirit. The First Division, N. Y. S. M., paraded, was reviewed by Gov. Morgan, marched in procession to the Park, and tendered the Governor and the Mayor the honor of a marching salute. In the morning the Mayor, on behalf of the City, presented the Fifty-fifth Regiment with an elegant stand of colors, and in the afternoon Gen. Paez signified his gratitude to the City Guard for the kind attention which it showed him on his departure for Venezuela some months since, by bestowing upon the Company a beautiful flag.

John Brown will be hung. Yesterday a Virginia major, of the name of Smith, was in Washington, en route to Charlestown. He goes to the relief of Col. Davis, of whose arduous exertions from day to day the public has been duly advised. Major Smith will assume the entire control of the military arrangements for Brown's execution on Friday next. Secretary Floyd tendered him any amount of arms or ammunition that he deemed necessary. As five hundred additional troops are to be sent from Richmond, the Federal aid is not needed. Charlestown is said to be for the moment tranquil.

The nominations of Mr. Havemeyer for Mayor, Mr. S. J. Tilden for Corporation Counsel, and Mr. McElroy for Almshouse Governor, were duly indorsed last night at Tammany Hall. The meeting, which represented an unusual amount of social and political influence, was so large that there were crowds both inside and out, speeches both inside and out, and enthusiasm all around. The Chairman of the meeting proper was Mr. Augustus Schell, and the speakers Hon. John Van Buren, Mr. Jas. T. Brady and Hon. John Kelly.

The Councilmanic Conventions, both of the Tammany and Mozart Hall branches of the Democracy, assembled last evening, at their respective head-quarters, to nominate candidates, but after a conference between them, both adjourned without making nominations. They meet again on Monday evening.

At an adjourned meeting of the Board of Park Commissioners held in Brooklyn, last evening, an amendment was made to the previous resolution recommending to the Legislature the location of two Parks—one at Prospect Hill, and the other at Ridgewood, with parade ground, and connected by Macadamized road, which was adopted after a long discussion. The Park at Prospect Hill will embrace land not to exceed 382 acres, the average price per acre of which will, it is estimated, be $2,500. The Park at Ridgewood is to embrace about 400 acres, to cost on an average $500 per acre or less. A Committee of five was appointed to make an estimate of the probable cost of the proposed Parks, and to recommend a plan for the payment of the same.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, Judge Russell denied a new trial to Springer, the noted receiver of stolen goods, recently convicted in that Court. Charles Moore, one of the party indicted for the murder of Daniel Stackpole, at a target excursion at Harlem, in November, 1858, for which Abraham B. Thompson was convicted of manslaughter, before Recorder Barnard, last February, and sentenced to three years and six months in the State Prison, was placed on trial, on the same charge. The evidence was the same as that published at length on the trial of Thompson. The Court sat till a late hour to complete the testimony. The summing up will take place this morning.

The speculation on the Stock Exchange, yesterday, was mainly for the rise in Pacific Mail, New-York Central and Reading Shares, and the Bonds of the Erie Company. The additional advance in Mail Stock was 6 ₱ cent.; in Erie Bonds, 3 to 5 ₱ cent. New-York Central closed 81½ ₱ cent. The State Stocks steady. Exchange dull for the Bremen steamer sailing to-morrow. Money in easy supply, at last quoted rates.

Favored by the encouraging news per Circassian, the market improved materially for Flour and Wheat, in each of which extensive transactions were reported. Shippers purchased freely. Corn and Rye were in demand, and closed higher. Barley, Oats, Coffee, Cotton, Metals, Oils, Tallow and Whisky were less sought after. Provisions were unsettled. Rice and Sugars were in lively request. The movements in Naval Stores and Tobacco were moderate. The Freight engagements were heavier, including, for Liverpool, Flour 2s. ₱ bbl., and Wheat at 5½c.@6c. ₱ bushel.

A Foolish Contest.

The Evening Post and some other Northern journals, gifted with more zeal than wisdom, are endeavoring to excuse John Brown's inroad upon Virginia, by showing that it was provoked by Southern men. Gov. Wise is said especially to have furnished at once provocation and example for such a movement, by threats to march upon Washington in case Col. Fremont had been elected President in 1856. A Southern gentleman is reported to have told a Northern gentleman that "Gov. Wise and the Virginia leaders were ready in that event to take the field,—march on Washington, depose the Federal officers, take the Treasury, archives, buildings, ground, &c., and declare the Confederation overthrown." The whole thing was cut and dried—there were 30,000 men ready, 20,000 cavalry, sets of accoutrements, &c., &c. And upon this absurd basis the Evening Post thus throws upon Gov. Wise the responsibility for John Brown's invasion:

"What wonder that Brown, who doubtless read the address of the Governor, and made himself familiar with the details of his proposed military operations, should have treasured the knowledge in his mind, should have remembered that Harper's Ferry was to be the first point of attack, the seizure of the Arsenal the first coup de main, and then such other proceedings as circumstances might prompt? The old man of Ossawatomie has been only the disciple of the Governor who is now charged with his hanging, and it would be but a fair requital, when his aged limbs stand under the fatal noose, if he should read to the people of Virginia 'the bloody instructions,' which he had learned from the mouth of their own Governor."

This would all be very striking if there were any basis of established fact for it to rest upon. But there is not a particle of proof that Gov. Wise ever entertained any such design. He certainly issued no such "addresses," nor promulgated any such plan of "military operations," for John Brown or anybody else, to read and "treasure in his mind;" nor is ther any reason to believe that Brown himself even suspected him of any such intention. Besides, even if Gov. Wise had cherished all these preposterous projects and made all these threats, there would still be a very material difference between him and John Brown in this particular,—that Brown actually attempted to execute his menaces, while Wise did not.

We all know the facility with which any man may express his intention of overturning an empire, or uprooting a mountain, and how safe it is to declare that, if something had happened which has not happened, he would have done something tremendous. "Virginia leaders" are not less lavish of rhodomontade than many other leaders of colder climes; but to take up their menaces as something which may fairly be allowed to affect the nation, either in its fears or hopes, is something of which we are not yet foolish enough to be guilty. In other words, we do not believe that Gov. Wise was ready "to take the field" at the time and in the manner set forth, and do the dreadful things at Washington which are ascribed to him in this story of the Post. We don't believe there were 30,000 men ready, nor 5,000, nor 1,000, and we are perfectly certain the 20,000 cavalry and accoutrements never existed outside of the Governor's imagination, even if they existed there. That such idle threats should be deemed of any importance whatever, and, above all, of any political importance—that one man should think it worth his while to repeat and another to write them down, and publish them—and still another gravely to comment on them and take them as the basis of political action, is one of the signs, not of the dangers, but of the folly of the times we live in. It has been for some years back a common practice at the South to talk of invading the North and whipping it; and politicians at the North have sought to promote their plans by taking hold of these threats and pretending to be frightened by them. The game has now been carried on so long that we should hope both parties are tired of it. Nobody here cares in the bottom of his heart what armies the Virginian leaders say they have got ready, or what fearful deeds of war they intend to perform. We know and they know they have no armies, and that they find their hands full in attending to their private business; and they know perfectly well also, that nobody out of the lunatic asylum contemplates a settlement of Northern and Southern differences by the sword,—that a physical contest between the two sections would be simply laughable, when compared with the commercial blows which they can deal each other. Men who threaten to march upon the Capital of the United States and seize upon the Government in case he and his friends are not allowed to have their own way, neither endanger the Union nor afford their political opponents fair ground for assailing him. He really stultifies himself so grossly, that comment upon him would be a waste of time and paper. If Gov. Wise committed himself as he is said to have done, we feel quite certain he would now rather not have it known. And we are equally certain that Old Brown would not thank any man for endeavoring to prove that he was seduced into his invasion by such empty gasconade as that imputed to the Virginia Governor.

That Irish Vote.—The Tribune relies largely on the Irish vote to secure the election of Mayor Wood. "The Irish Democratic suffrages are now assured to Wood," it says; hence his vote is to be much larger than Havemeyer's. For some ten or fifteen years past the Tribune has been counting upon the "Irish vote" as a means of success. It seems at last to have abandoned the hope of winning it over to the Republican ticket, but is quite confident—or professes to be—that it will not be cast for the regular Democratic nominee. It relies on the fact that neither Mr. [illegible] was nominated for Corporation Counsel. This is to be regarded by the Irish as an insult—and they are to show their resentment by voting for Wood. Considering that both these gentlemen declined to be candidates, that both favored the nomination of Mr. Tilden, and that both are honestly and zealously working for his election, we do not see precisely the basis of the Tribune's hope.

It is quite possible that a large part of the Irish Democratic vote may be cast for Wood, though we do not now believe it will. The Irish are pretty faithful adherents to the regular ticket, and will not be likely to desert it for light causes. If they are inclined to do so, however, this fact ought certainly to impress upon every good citizen the increased necessity of voting for the only candidate who can possibly defeat Fernando Wood. There may be some who think Mr. Opdyke is the man:—the leaders of the Republican Party know better.

Our Volunteer Soldiers.

The Anniversary of the Evacuation of this City by the British in 1783 was celebrated yesterday by a force which, as far as drill, uniform, arms, accoutrements, and in fact all the externals of soldiership are concerned, far surpasses any troops that Washington ever commanded in the whole course of the Revolutionary war,—a force, in short, such as in these particulars, he no doubt often dreamed of, but was never in his waking moments able to feast his eyes upon. The first division of the New-York State militia, numbering, we believe, about five thousand men, might, in fact, take its place in line with any army in Europe, and not by any means suffer by the comparison,—and there are many European armies which it would throw completely in the shade, both as regards precision of movement and splendor of appearance. It has also an enormous advantage over all hired troops, in the raw material of which it is composed. It is made up of men who, if they could be got to make soldiering a profession instead of a pastime, would become superior to any force of equal size in the world. Regular armies are mainly recruited by legal compulsion, or rash impulses, or bad behavior, and out of the demoralized mob which such agents furnish, we know what terrible instruments of destruction discipline and organization are able to create. If good will, intelligence, education and high principle could be got to contribute as large a quota to the ranks of any Power in Europe, as is usually furnished by the corresponding vices and deficiencies, the monarch who owned such an army would have the Old World at his feet, and might fairly treat the balance of power as a chimera. Fortunately for the liberty and happiness of mankind, the very qualities which would render a force of this kind invincible, render it the friend of order and of freedom and the worst enemy both of tyrants and demagogues. That a Government like that we possess finds such troops in abundance to maintain its supremacy, is not only the highest testimony that could be paid to its excellence, but the strongest possible guarantee of its safety.

The precision in drill and movement which some of the regiments, the Seventh and Seventy-first for instance, have acquired, has one great advantage for volunteer soldiery in the éclat which it gives in the eyes of the public. It is this quality, combined with neatness and brilliancy of uniform, which always calls down popular applause, and popular applause must always be the chief reward and chief stimulus of such military organizations as ours. It is folly to attempt to raise any military force above such considerations. The reason which makes us stop and gaze while a well-drilled regiment defiles past justifies the soldier in desiring to have us do so. As long, therefore, as we wish to rely on volunteer corps for defense against domestic treason or foreign invasion, it is sound policy to make the uniform and drill such as will strike the popular eye.

There is, however, another side to the matter, which we beg to suggest for the consideration of our volunteer corps, and as measures for the reorganization of the militia on a footing of even greater efficiency than at present are, we understand, under discussion, this is the proper time to do so. With so small a standing army as we have, the militia assumes an importance which it possesses in no other country, and, in adding to its importance, let us also add to its responsibilities. If we had a large regular force, it would be all but impossible to construct and maintain such corps as were yesterday seen on parade. A large line always throws cold water on volunteer enthusiasm, and it is enthusiasm alone which can bring volunteer organizations up to a high standard of efficiency. The men who make a business of fighting always absorb the interest with which the public regards soldiering. There is an air of stern reality about their doings which fascinates the public gaze. The daily routine of duty, of course, also keeps the line up to a standard of precision which it takes volunteers a long time to attain, and the contrast which the two forces are apt to present at the outset generally results, wherever the people are used to seeing the line in large force, in the snubbing and ridicule of the militia. Both in France and England the latter has always been the laughing stock of the populace, and has consequently never been either very numerous or very efficient. The difficulty that has been experienced in England of late in getting up rifle corps, is mainly due to the complete superiority which the public has been long accustomed to attribute to the regular troops; and few men who have anything else to do, care therefore to spend their money in buying a uniform and getting themselves taught paces which only serve to set people sneering at their attempts to imitate "real sojers."

Our militia has, however, always held the first rank in popular favor, and has always eclipsed the line both in numbers and brilliancy. It consequently owes it to the public to be more than showy—to keep abreast with the march of improvement in military science, while it delights us on our gala days with the splendor of its externals. The close formation and extreme accuracy which are now the main characteristics of its drill, and which delight the popular eye so much, are things which we have copied from the British, and the British from the old German school established by the father of Frederick the Great, of Prussia, but which the late improvements in firearms have, as the late campaign in Italy has shown, rendered not only unnecessary but dangerous. The stately march, the regular and measured stride, the stiff bearing, the rigid line, the compact masses, the simultaneous fire, which were the boast and glory of the soldiers of the Archduke Charles and of Wellington, are fast passing into the category with arquebuses, coats of mail, and hand grenades. A clear eye, a steady hand, and supple limbs, are taking the place which was once assigned to unbroken ranks and rolling volleys, and there is a fair probability that twenty years more will see all the heavy battalions of the armies of the world resolved into clouds of agile riflemen, sure of aim, ready with the bayonet, and offering little mark for rifled cannon. We have said that we think the drill which shows most on parade is a sort of drill which citizen soldiery must necessarily cultivate, because it is that which the crowd most admires; but to render themselves really efficient for active service, a strong infusion of the Zouave into the "British Grenadier" is absolutely essential. Moreover, the rifle drill is that for which the national temperament best fits our men. We are too vivacious, buoyant, nervous and self-reliant to allow of our being successfully massed like Austrian and Russian infantry, and, though last not least, the gymnastics of the change would have a much better effect upon the health of the troops than the present system, admirable as it is even in a sanitary point of view.

Before dismissing the subject, we may be permitted to say that the cavalry of this division is utterly worthless and thoroughly ridiculous. The sooner both horses and men are released from military service the better. Bad cavalry is worse than none, because it not only can accomplish nothing, but is very expensive. The Seventh Regiment has long formed a model for all the other infantry regiments and is now a nucleus round which a fine army is gradually forming. Why cannot something of the same sort that it has done for the infantry be done for the cavalry? There are surely by this time a hundred young men at least in New-York able to provide themselves with good chargers, and good arms, and willing to be converted into excellent hussars by a West Point graduate. If such a corps were once formed, we have no doubt it would increase rapidly, and we should at least have a regiment of cavalry that we could show with pride. The Central Park now offers facilities for its formation that we have never had before.

The Support of Wood.

"The nomination of Hon. Greene C. Bronson as Corporation Counsel on the Wood ticket, and his acceptance of the nomination, give to Mr. Wood's movement a consistency and respectability in the public estimation which it had not before possessed. Judge Bronson is not only a time-honored leader of the Democrats, and an eminent lawyer and a man of spotless personal integrity, but he has filled high offices with ability and reputation. The last of these offices was that of Collector of New-York, from which he was removed by President Pierce under circumstances that rendered the event creditable to the dismissed, and discreditable to the dismissing functionary. His nomination still further strengthens the Mozart and weakens the Tammany party."

We copy the foregoing, not from the Herald or News, but from the New-York Tribune, of yesterday morning. It confirms the suspicion we have already expressed that the political wire-pullers of the Republican Party had no thought of supporting their own candidate, but were working to elect Fernando Wood. The Tribune has not a word to say of the character of his previous administration. It is utterly silent concerning those shocking abuses of power which used to provoke its wrath. We hear nothing from its columns of the swindling, the corruption, the shameless dishonesty, both personal and official, which it used to charge home upon Mayor Wood. All its thunder is reserved for Mr. Havemeyer.

We do not suppose that the Tribune has any profound personal regard for the candidate whom it thus supports, or that it seeks his reelection from any distinct approval of his public policy. The motives for its course are political. It prefers Mr. Wood's election to Mr. Havemeyer's because it will damage the Democratic Party,—because it will perpetuate the feud which prevails in its ranks,—and because, moreover, it will give the Republican Party capital in fresh abuses of the City Government. If the Democrats should give us an honest City administration, they would deprive the Republicans of a strong ground of assault. Wood, on the contrary, in the Mayor's chair, would furnish abundant material for a sharp party warfare. Besides, if Wood can be elected Mayor it will strengthen him greatly at the Charleston Convention, and thus promote the chances of confusion and dissension in the ranks of the National Democracy.

These are the reasonings and the motives of party-leaders. We have no disposition to contest their logic, or to complain of their immorality. "Doing evil that good may come" is a recognized style of party warfare, and it would be folly to combat or denounce it. But we may fairly appeal to the great mass of the Republicans, who are also citizens of the metropolis, against thus allowing all their home interests,—the security of their property, the health and welfare of their City, the order and peace of this whole community, to be sacrificed to the exigencies of partisanship. We want and need a good City Government. We need this quite as much as a change in the national administration; we feel the need of it a great deal more. But certainly there is no justice in thus sacrificing the welfare of this City to the exigencies of party. The coming election is purely a municipal contest. Its objects and aims are all limited to the City. Let us conduct it on its merits. Let us not fasten upon ourselves, for two years, a corrupt, selfish, unprincipled administration, in the hope of damaging political opponents and thus achieving some party advantage in the future.

Thoroughfares.

A Judge in Philadelphia has just signalized himself by doing, with all the solemnity appropriate to the Bench, the same public duty which every London policeman performs a dozen times a-day with no more thought than he bestows on a mug of beer. The drivers of the Philadelphia horse-railway-cars have fallen, it seems, into the trick of stopping their great clumsy vehicles in the middle of the streets opposite the places of public amusement at night, and there touting for passengers to the utter blockading of the whole highway. This righteous Judge has commanded them to "move on," and has thus restored the public ways to their normal condition of thoroughfares. The achievement is a very simple one, certainly, and it is a pity that a Judge should have been put to the trouble of doing what any constable ought to have done for him without a second thought. Still, if the knot could not be untied without this high judicial interposition, it was well that the Judge came down to the work; and we should be glad to see his Honor transferred, like another Theseus, to Broadway. For we, too, have our monsters making night hideous and the roadway impassable before the doors of every theatre, concert hall, and gallery from Dodworth's and the Winter Garden down to Christy's and Wallack's Theatre. And our policemen seem to be as remiss in facing the nuisance as their Philadelphia cotemporaries. The Broadway lines of omnibuses, which are managed in other respects on the principle of making everybody as uncomfortable as possible, are allowed to usurp the street at night in a manner which is simply disgraceful. They are suffered to congregate in a series of chaotic dams, which make all traffic impossible, throughout the entire length of our main City artery. The passenger who takes his seat in one of these vehicles at Union-square, is deliberately defrauded of his rights by repeated illegal stoppages; accidents are rendered probable by the inextricable confusion of wheels and horses tugging twenty different stages a dozen different ways, and the thoroughfare of the public is appropriated to their own uses by a set of private speculators as calmly as if they were target companies defending the national honor, or Sons of Malta worshiping their unknown God. If the Superintendent of our Police is unequal to abating this nuisance thoroughly, we must send at once for the Philadelphia Judge.

Spontaneous Sovereignty.

We are indebted to a correspondent in the neighborhood of "the setting sun" for a copy of the "Message of the Governor of the Territory of Jefferson." We detect one statement in this document which is open to some doubt. Gov. Steele informs his constituents of the Council and House of Representatives that "the eyes of the Union are upon them," and that they would do well, therefore, to take careful heed to their legislative ways. The advice is good, but the basis of it somewhat doubtful. The eyes of the Union, we venture to say, have not even discovered the Territory which thus supposes itself to be their cynosure. Not one man in five hundred, we presume, in the country at large, is aware of the existence of any such political community as the Territory of Jefferson.

In point of fact, it has as yet no legal existence. It is a creation of Popular Sovereignty,—the unrecognized offspring of an unadmitted principle. Last Winter, it may be remembered, a bill was introduced in Congress, proposing to organize a new Territory out of the western part of Kansas, to be called the Territory of Colona. The bill failed. But the people of the region concerned have taken the matter into their own hands. They have organized a provisional government, elected a Governor and a State Legislature, and set in motion the machinery of a new Territory. Their Legislature met at Auraria, the capital, on the 7th of November,—and the Governor, Mr. R. W. Steele, sent in the Message to which we have already referred.

This proceeding involves a repudiation of the authority of Kansas, which as yet is Federal authority. They have elected a Territorial Delegate to Congress, who will apply for his admission; but this can only be granted after the recognition and admission of the new Territory. Whether this will be conceded, is somewhat doubtful. It will be resisted on the ground mainly that it will lead directly to the accession of a new Free State; but this argument loses much of its weight, even with the South, in consequence of the admitted hopelessness of attempting to maintain a balance of sectional power. As Mr. Seward said in the Senate two years ago, that contest is already ended. The struggle is over;—the ascendancy of Free States in the Federal Councils is established beyond all possibility of change. Kansas is too large for one State, and the gold-fever in the Rocky Mountain region has caused a large aggregation of inhabitants in the section most remote from the central authority.

The Governor reminds the Legislature of Jefferson that they must look to the general Government for the payment of expenses,—the establishment of mail routes, the building of roads and bridges, and other matters essential to the opening of the country and the development of its resources. Upon this point there will probably be very little difference of opinion among the inhabitants. However eager squatters may be to assert their own sovereignty in all matters of authority, when it comes to the payment of money they are quite willing to acknowledge the supremacy of the general Government.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

AFFAIRS IN WASHINGTON.

The Consul-General to Constantinople—The New Costa Rican Government—Fraud in the Indian Reservation System—The Oregon War Debt—Dispatches from San Juan—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Washington, Friday, Nov. 25.

Marshall M. Smith, the newly-appointed Consul-General to Constantinople, is in the City. He expects to take his departure for Liverpool in the Canada.

Dispatches from Costa Rica represent the new Government as highly popular.

It is understood that Secretary Thompson will urge on Congress the necessity of abolishing the Indian reservation system, which he regards as inseparably connected with fraud.

Gen. Lane is preparing to urge payment by Congress of the Oregon War Debt, and it is now being investigated by the third Auditor. Q.

[FROM THE REPORTER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Friday, Nov. 25.

The Secretary of War, to-day, received the following dispatch from Lieut.-Gen. Scott, dated Straits of Fuca, and sent by way of Leavenworth: "Two days ago, I dispatched from Fort Townsend a communication to Gov. Douglass, proposing a temporary adjustment of the existing difficulties, on the basis suggested by the President in his instructions to me. There has been no answer yet, but there is no doubt the proposition will be accepted. Everything is tranquil in these Islands."

Dr. Breed, formerly an Examiner in the Patent-office, having been arraigned before Justice Donn on the charge of uttering incendiary language, was, to-day, required to give security in the sum of $2,000 to keep the peace. It appears the objectionable words were uttered in the presence of several persons, (Senator Seward's views being the topic of conversation,) and soon thereafter were published in the States and Union newspaper—hence his arrest.

James D. Stevenson, of New-York, has offered to establish a steamship line and carry the mails for the postages from that city via St. Thomas to the Brazils, and the Postmaster-General has signified his willingness to conclude such an arrangement on satisfactory sureties being furnished. No contract, however, has yet been executed.

At a meeting of the Central National Botts Club, of Washington, held to-night, it was resolved to merge the same into the National Opposition Club of New-York, where the headquarters will be in future.

The Treasurer's statement shows that the receipts for the week ending on Monday were $1,366,000. The amount of the drafts paid was $798,000, and the drafts issued $1,268,000. The amount subject to draft is $5,287,000. The increase over the sum on hand last week is nearly $98,000.

It is understood that the physicians of Judge Douglas unite in urging him to proceed to the Coast of Florida, with a view to the restoration of his health, and also that Mrs. Douglas accompany him for a similar purpose, as soon as their strength will enable him to travel. It is not yet known, however, whether he will act on the suggestion.

The number of members of Congress in this city is daily increasing. The organization of the House of Representatives is with them the prominent topic of conversation and concern.

THE LOSS OF THE INDIAN.

Details of the Casualty—Loss of Life—A Steamer and vessel Wrecked in Endeavoring to Assist.

Sackville, N. B., Friday, Nov. 25.

The iron steamer Indian, from Liverpool, struck a sea ledge near Maria Joseph, on Monday, the 21st inst.

She had 38 passengers, a crew of 100 men, and [illegible] tons of cargo, and some specie.

Half an hour after striking she parted amidships.

One boat was capsized, and several persons were drowned.

Another boat was stove alongside.

Two more boats, with part of the passengers and crew, drifted to sea and have not since been heard of.

The schooner Alexander, Capt. Shellnut, was the first to render assistance, and arrived at Halifax on the 24th, with twenty-four persons on board.

The number of lives lost is not known.

The schooner Loutca ran close to the wreck among the breakers, and became herself a total wreck. Crew saved.

Later from Mexico.

Mr. M'Lane at Vera Cruz—Miramon and Marquez still in Mexico—Military Plans.

New-Orleans, Friday, Nov. 25.

The steamship Tennessee has arrived here with Vera Cruz dates of the 22d inst. and $136,000 in specie.

Minister McLane arrived on the 21st, but remained on board the Brooklyn in consequence of his family being sick.

The report that Marquez had pronounced in favor of Santa Anna was without foundation. The report of his seizure of the conducta is confirmed, but that of his escape is contradicted.

Marquez says that he is using the money to save the country from the Yankees, and promises to retake it from the first duties received at Tepic and Mazatlan, which he intimates he intends retaking.

Miramon was at Queretaro, waiting for the Liberals, who threatened the capital.

Doblado had been defeated at Guanajuato, with heavy loss. An American officer who was with him was shot or assassinated.

Cobos had captured Oajaca, and the Liberals there had disbanded.

The Picayune's correspondent reports that the French fleet will soon blockade Vera Cruz.

Miramon, at the suggestion of the French Minister, is to open Alvarado as a port of entry. Insurance policies are to have a blockade clause inserted in them.

Miramon also proposes simultaneously attacking Vera Cruz.

The Savannah and one French and one Spanish brig-of-war were at Sacrificios.

A severe gale had caused several small vessels to run ashore.

Action of the Legislature in regard to Brownsville—Public feeling—What Gen. Houston recommends.

New-Orleans, Friday, Nov. 25.

The Legislature of Texas has authorized the Governor to call out all the troops necessary for the protection of the frontier. The Governor appointed Capt. Ford commander of the troops, and he started for the Rio Grande on the 18th, with orders to arrest Cortinas and his band.

The Brownsville reports created intense excitement throughout Texas. The small town of Gonzales raised 200 men in two days, to proceed to the scene of disturbance.

Cortinas had returned Deputy-Sheriff Campbell to Brownsville unharmed, against the wishes of his own men.

Gen. Houston recommends the Legislature to authorize the raising of a Regiment of mounted men to protect the frontier from the Indians.

Brownsville on the 19th was still closely besieged, and an expedition was preparing against Cortinas.

Destructive Fires.

Stores destroyed at Troy.

Troy, Friday, Nov. 25.

A large fire occurred early this morning, destroying four stores on River-street, near Grand and Division. The following are the losses: John Hoyt & Co., dry goods, about $40,000, insured as follows: Liverpool and London Office, $5,000; Fireman's, $5,000; Atlantic, $4,000; Merchants', $3,000, and Excelsior, $3,000. T. Griffiths, milliner and dry goods dealer, loses about $10,000; insured for $3,000 in the Etna Company. The paper store of Jamieson & Co., loss not ascertained; Sayers' news-room, loss about $1,500, insured for $1,000 in the Montauk and $1,500 in the Norwich office. The buildings were owned by Mr. Griffith and the H. Van Schoenhaven and Lane estates. The total loss is about $80,000.

Warehouses burned in Boston.

Boston, Friday, Nov. 25.

A serious fire broke out this morning in the large building numbered 379, 381 and 383 Washington-street, occupied by Fortune & Pelletier, wholesale and retail dry goods, and Geo. Hughes and A. Newhall, piano-forte manufacturers. The upper part of the building was destroyed, and the dry-goods stock in the lower story badly damaged by water. The loss, about $20,000, is nearly covered by insurance.

Another Wife-Murder.

SAN JUAN ISLAND.

Movements of Gen. Scott—The Occupation of the Island.

By way of San Francisco we have details of the news from British Columbia, previously reported by telegraph. Gen. Scott and staff landed at Port Townsend, and reembarked on board the United States steamer Massachusetts, for Bellingham Bay.

The Victoria Gazette, Oct. 27, says:

"The prominent feature of the news published in this issue, is the arrival in these waters of Lieut.-Gen. Scott, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army. Of the precise object of this visit, it is impossible to speak definitely, all that is known being that Gen. Scott is invested with great discretionary powers. It is not probable, however, that those powers have any bearing on the ultimate settlement of the boundary, but were conferred in consequence of apprehensions on the part of the United States Government that a collision between Gen. Harney and the British forces had taken place, or that the matter had otherwise become more complicated than at the date to which the advices received by the United States Government reached. During his stay in this vicinity it is stated that Gen. Scott's headquarters will be on board the United States steamer Massachusetts.

Gen. Scott arrived at Portland, Oregon, Oct. 21. The News says that the Northerner having first stopped at Vancouver, the news of his arrival on this coast had been received here before the arrival of the Northerner, and at the time of its arrival an immense crowd of our citizens was congregated upon the wharf, and as the steamer approached the wharf, and the stalwart form of the old hero of Vera Cruz and Chapultepec, and a score of other splendid victories became visible—then such deafening cheers 'as Americans alone can give,' spontaneously burst from the assembled citizens, which the gallant old hero gracefully acknowledged. Subsequently, the Portland Fire Department, in uniform, gave the General a similar welcome salute. Then ringing of bells and the firing of cannon also attested the sense of respect which the great mass of our citizens entertain towards the man who has won for the American name a host of splendid victories. We are rejoiced because of the spontaneous and hearty welcoming which our citizens gave the gallant old hero. The General leaves on the steamer to-day.

The City Council of Portland extended to Gen. Scott the hospitality of the city. While accepting it, he has declined any formal reception."

OBITUARY.

Rev. Joshua Flagg, of Dana, Mass., died on the 10th November, in that town, at the age of 86¾ years. He was a Universalist preacher more than sixty years, and was the oldest clergyman of that denomination in Massachusetts. He was highly esteemed by his neighbors of a different religious belief, and was buried from the Church of the Trinitarian Congregational Society of the place of his residence. The funeral services were conducted by Orthodox and Universalist ministers.

Sorghum.—A correspondent from Springfield, Cedar County, Iowa, writes that about 7,000 gallons of syrup have been made in that town, from the Sorghum cane, during the past year. The town has 174 families, nearly all whom are members of the Society of Friends.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THAT BALLOON VOYAGE TO EUROPE.—The Balloon exhibition of Prof. LOWE is finally closed for the season, and the promised Aerial trip to Europe postponed—mainly "on account of the weather." All the apparatus having been removed from the Palace grounds, visitors who, on Thursday, were allured to the spot, to witness an ascension in the small balloon, found "the great globe itself, gone like the baseless fabric of a vision." The heavy blow on Thanksgiving day rendered the preliminary ascension impossible, so that no visiters were admitted, and no money received. The balloon has been carried to a place near the gas-house, at the foot of Fourteenth-street, North River, where it will remain until Spring.

THE PRIZE FIGHTERS IN TROUBLE.—Capt. SQUIRES and the Buffalo Deputy-Marshal who has been watching for those concerned in the prize fights which have recently occurred near Buffalo, on Thanksgiving night came upon "Australian KELLY" suddenly in the drinking saloon, which he is in the habit of frequenting, in Thirteenth-street. KELLY, it will be remembered, was defeated in the fight with PRICE some months ago. He supposed that the Buffalo officer had left the City, and thus fell into his power unawares. His friends got out a writ of habeas corpus, brought him before Judge RUSSELL, and had him admitted to bail.

ARREST OF ALLEGED LOTTERY VENDERS.—Three alleged lottery dealers, GEORGE LININHALL JACOB BROWN, of No. 195 Thirty-eighth-street, and GEORGE GLEASON, were arrested by Officers SMITH and VAN ARSDALE, charged by FERD. HOTCHKISS, of No 348 Bowery, with having sold him lottery slips on the Delaware and Georgia Lottery. The accused were taken before Justice STEERS, and each was held to bail in the sum of $500. JAMES T. BAGUE, of No. 61 East Thirty-first-street, became security for them.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—JOHN N. FARELL, of Concord, Mass., attempted to commit suicide yesterday in his room at Lovejoy's Hotel. Twice he attempted to discharge a pistol, the muzzle of which he had put to his ear, but no more extended injury was suffered than a slight laceration of the face. The police took charge of him.

KANE MONUMENT ASSOCIATION.—This evening, at the Academy of Music, the Hon. ANSON BURLINGAME will deliver the introductory lecture of the course which is to be given in aid of the fund for the erection of a monument to Dr. KANE.

A LAUNCH.—The iron steamship Matanzas, of 1,000 tons burthen, will be launched from the yard of C. H. DELAMATER, foot of West Thirteenth-street, North River, this morning, at 10 o'clock.

Coroners' Inquests.

A FROLIC AND A FIGHT.

About 2½ o'clock yesterday morning a dispute arose between two persons who were attending a Thanksgiving party at No. 405 Madison-street, as to which should have the honor of dancing with one of the females present. JOHN BRANNAN, uncle of one of the parties concerned, attempted to settle the difficulty by using a club with great freedom. Some person, who escaped unrecognized in the mêlée, finally stabbed BRANNAN six times. A cry of murder brought the Second Ward Police to the spot. They arrested the whole company, including JOHN FINLEY, who was accused of having stabbed BRANNAN, and removed the wounded man to the Hospital. At an ante-mortem examination which Coroner JACKMAN held, no testimony could be elicited which fastened guilt on FINLEY, or on any other of the prisoners, and they were all discharged, the jury finding that some unknown person had committed the deed.

FATALLY BURNED.

A little girl, five years of age, named LOUISA BICKLEN, living at No. 12 Thomas-street, was fatally burned on Monday night by her clothes taking fire from contact with a stove. Coroner SCHIRMER held an inquest.

Police Reports.

CAPTURE OF BURGLARS.

James Gallagher and Michael Sullivan, residents of Baxter-street, and rogues by profession, were captured on Thursday night as they were robbing Mrs. Margaret Walters' apartments in the tenement-house No. 166 Bayard-street. Yesterday morning Justice CONNOLLY committed them to answer a charge of burglary in the first degree.

EVACUATION DAY.

Observance of the Seventy-sixth Anniversary—Appearance of the Military—Review by Gov. Morgan—Presentation of a Stand of Colors to the City Guard by Gen. Paez.

The seventy-sixth anniversary of the evacuation of New-York by the British army was observed yesterday with all the honors. By order of the Major-General a detachment of the artillery of the Second Brigade fired the national salute from the Battery at sunrise. By common consent the flags of all nations were displayed from the shipping in the harbor, and the national ensign floated over the public buildings of the City.

At 10 o'clock the Mayor, on behalf of the Corporation of the City, presented a magnificent stand of colors to the Fifty-fifth Regiment, (Garde Lafayette,) Col. EUGENE LEGAL commanding. A large crowd in front of the City Hall witnessed the ceremony which attended the presentation. The colors bore inscriptions setting forth that they were presented to the Regiment by the Corporation, indicating the date of the organization of the Regiment—Sept. 29, 1855—and commemorating the battles of Monmouth, Brandywine, and Yorktown in which the hero whose name the Garde bears, acquitted himself so gallantly. The Regimental banner is of scarlet silk, fringed with gold, and on its face is limned a representation of the Genius of Liberty supporting a likeness of LAFAYETTE. On the ensign of the State, which is of blue silk, with gold trimmings, are the ARMS of the State and its motto. After presenting the colors to the color-sergeants, the Mayor addressed the Colonel. He referred to the noble fame which LAFAYETTE won by the part which he took in our struggle for Independence, and spoke of the gratitude which the people of this City owe the First Division for the promptness with which it always obeyed the call of duty.

Col. LE GAL responded briefly and appropriately, the Regiment presented arms, the drums rolled, the officers saluted, the color sergeants bore the new colors into the ranks, and Col. LE GAL, addressing the Regiment, said:

CARDE LAFAYETTE: To your care I now commit this evidence of the confidence reposed in you, and I know that you will not prove recreant to the trust. (Loud cheers.)

The ceremony over, the Regiment marched and countermarched, and proceeded up Broadway to the Parade-ground of the First Division.

Punctually at noon the Division line was formed on Fourteenth-street, the right resting on Broadway. Brigadier-General HALL was in command; the Major-General, on account of a severe domestic bereavement, has not recently appeared on parade. While the commanding officer was reviewing the troops preparatory to the review by Gov. MORGAN, a national salute was fired in Union-square by a detachment of the Fourth Regiment, and at 12½ o'clock the Governor, in full uniform, mounted on a white charger, accompanied by his staff-officers and the acting-commandant and staff of the First Division, and escorted by the troop of the Eighth Regiment, passed down the line, and was received with presented arms, martial airs, a salute of eleven guns from the artillery in Union-square, and the shouts of the people.

As soon as the review was completed, Gov. MORGAN took his place at the head of the troops, and the procession marched around the upper arc of Union Park and down Broadway. The line of march was flanked by crowds of spectators. Near the head of the line Gen. PAEZ, the Venezuelan hero, rode in an open barouche with Señor P. J. ROJAS, Senator of Venezuela, and Señor D. S. CAMACHO, resident Consul of Venezuela. He was dressed in the gorgeous uniform of the rank which he once held in his own country, and was a conspicuous part of the display.

Arrived at the Park, Gov. MORGAN and Gen. PAEZ took up positions respectively on the left and on the right of the Mayor in front of the City Hall, and the military marched around the lower end of the Park and entered at the east gate.

As the military passed Gov. MORGAN they paid him the honor of a marching salute, which was gracefully acknowledged, and the troops were then dismissed, the Governor however remaining to witness the presentation of a stand of colors to the City Guard by Gen. PAEZ, of Venezuela.

PRESENTATION OF COLORS TO THE CITY GUARD BY GEN. PAEZ.

When Gen. PAEZ, by invitation of the Venezuelian Convention, had concluded to revisit his native land and take part in its government, the City Guard was the first to tender an escort to him on the occasion of his departure. Circumstances, which all remember, delayed the General's departure; but when he finally determined to embark, the City Guard, with some other companies, escorted him to his vessel. As a token of his appreciation of their kind feeling, Gen. PAEZ, on his return, caused a stand of colors to be made for the company, and chose Evacuation Day for their presentation. Accordingly, after the review of the troops by Gov. MORGAN, the City Guards formed in front of the City Hall to receive the flag.

When everything was ready for the presentation, Gen. PAEZ stepped forward, and, in Spanish, recited the kindness and courtesy he had received from the Guard on the occasion of his departure; expressed his gratitude; and, in presenting the colors, indulged the hope that if ever the United States should require the services of the City Guard, the colors he then presented would be prominent on the field.

Capt. MURPHY, on behalf of the Company, thanked General PAEZ; referred to the occasion of his departure, and regretted that when he left he did not take the Guard with him; and, finally, welcomed his return to the United States—a country where every patriot, great or small, was always well received.

On the conclusion of the presentation, the line formed and passed in review, and then Gen. PAEZ, Gov. MORGAN and Mayor TIEMANN retired.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

MEETING OF THE PARK COMMISSIONERS.—At an adjourned meeting of the Park Commissioners yesterday, it was resolved to recommend to the Common Council the location of two Parks, one at Prospect Hill, to embrace about 382 acres, and the other at Ridgewood, to contain not more than 400 acres, the two to be connected by Macadamized roads. Land in the first-named locality will cost $2,500 per acre, and in the last about $500.

WM. F. HAVEMEYER FOR MAYOR.
SAMUEL J. TILDEN, COUNSEL TO THE CORPORATION.

Prominent Considerations Submitted to the Public by the Friends of the Havemeyer Nominations.

KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

Day by day the Tribune is more openly removing its philanthropic mask, and revealing its secret purpose to support FERNANDO WOOD. We suggest that, for mere decency's sake, this organ of the Republican politicians (as opposed to the Republican masses) should make at least some pretext of wishing to elect the candidates put forward on the Republican ticket. It had not a word to say for SOLOMON L. HULL, the nominee of its own party or Corporation Counsel, but it exhausts the highest epithets of eulogy in recommending the candidate named for this office by FERNANDO WOOD.

He is, forsooth, a "time-honored leader," and "an eminent lawyer, and a man of spotless personal integrity." His nomination, in the Tribune's opinion, can even give "consistency and respectability" to WOOD'S self-nomination for Mayor. "Consistency," of all words in the English language! Consistency between "a man of spotless personal integrity" and the individual denounced by the same paper as "guilty in his private life of repeated pecuniary frauds, and ONLY SAVED FROM STATE PRISON BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS!" These words are extracted from a leading editorial in the Tribune, and nothing further need be said, we think, as to the "consistency" of that journal's course.

PUBLIC OPINION ON OUR CIVIC ISSUES.

Every day and hour makes stronger the assurance that the solid intelligence and worth of the City of New-York will cast an overwhelming majority of votes in the coming municipal contest for WILLIAM F. HAVEMEYER and SAMUEL J. TILDEN. What is known in politics as the "silent vote" of the City—the property holders, merchants, tradesmen, professional classes, mechanics and all honest laborers—will not suffer themselves to be distracted and rendered powerless by any of the agencies at work in WOOD'S favor, or any variety of candidates kept in the field to subserve his purposes. It is understood and recognized that this contest lies between honesty and roguery in municipal affairs,—in other words, between WILLIAM F. HAVEMEYER, representing the right-minded portion of the community, and FERNANDO WOOD, at the head of all that is worst and most degraded in our City population.

MR. OPDYKE'S TRUE POSITION STATED.

For Mr. OPDYKE personally we have great respect. He is estimable and worthy in all his private relations, and we can only regret that his lack of judgment and experience in public affairs should continue him in a position to appear as the subservient tool of the Wood interest. It would be painful to his self-appreciation to realize the position in which he is made stand: he is set up by the politicians of his own party only to be knocked down; and this sacrifice will be the more readily made as it gives them an opportunity of taking vengeance on Mr. OPDYKE for his course at Albany last Winter in opposition to their private schemes. All the machine-vote of the Republican Party, amounting to between 3,500 and 4,000 votes will be cast solid for WOOD; while of the remaining Republican vote—about 17,000—Mr. OPDYKE will only have the satisfaction of drawing off some 2,000 or 2,500 from the cause of municipal honesty as championed by WM. F. HAVEMEYER. The large majority of those who vote the Republican ticket in Presidential contests are not strict party men, where noissue affecting their convictions is presented. In local affairs—in the selection of a Mayor—they will vote as independent members of a Corporation, endeavoring to protect their pecuniary interests by the election of an honest, capable and reliable President. An examination of Mr. OPDYKE'S scheme for the erection of a "Bullion Bank" will not impress the practical minds of the Republican ranks with any very exalted belief of the soundness of Mr. OPDYKE'S financial views. By remaining in the field he can only passively assist those bitter party enemies of his who seek, first, to assist FERNANDO WOOD, and secondly, to kill off Mr. OPDYKE, whose good personal character might otherwise make him a power in the Republican ranks.

ENORMOUS POWERS OF THE MAYORALTY.

It has been said in the interest of WOOD during this contest that the Mayor has no power—that the Mayoralty is of no consequence—that the character and acts of the man selected to fill this office can make no material difference to the mass of independent citizens. These assumptions are either based on utter ignorance of the position, or uttered with a deliberate intention to deceive the voters and lull into an apathy favorable to a bad man's election. The Mayor nominates all the Heads of Executive Departments, and WOOD appointed CHARLES DEVLIN Street Commissioner. WOOD also appropriated all the subordinate patronage, and every clerkship and messengership was distributed by him, either with a sole view to party service and the reflection of the appointing power, or from other considerations of a still more unworthy kind. In addition to this responsibility of patronage, the Mayor holds a check over legislation in the Common Council, his veto requiring a two-thirds vote of both Boards to override it. He has the duty of recommending and suggesting to the Common Council proper subjects for their action, and he has to report to that body and the public at large all matters affecting the general interests and welfare of the City. He is the power appointed to communicate by authority with our State Legislature—to demand all such laws as are needed, and to protest in the corporate name of the City against any invasion of our chartered rights. In the last resort against public fraud he can withhold his signature from any warrant intended to procure an illegal payment, as all warrants on the Chamberlain require his name. There is no office in the country, save that of President, with such enormous patronage and power at its command. Against irregular claims, fraudulent contracts, usurpations of executive authority by the Common Council, the connivance of corrupt officials with public depredators—against these and all the other evils in the Pandora's box of civic iniquity opened by FERNANDO WOOD while in power, the Mayoralty in honest hands is the sole but sufficing safeguard. Whoever says it is "of no consequence," is working in the interest of one who made it a terror and a blight to all our most sensitive elements of civic prosperity

THE CHOICE BEFORE US.

A pertinent question in forming our opinion as to the character of any man is, as to the nature of his social relations—the habits of those with whom he sits in council and spends his leisure hours, the standing in the community of his most prominent supporters. Examine the names which to-day appear in connection with FERNANDO WOOD, and then search the records of the District-Attorney's office. This will give you a clearer insight than is to be obtained in any other manner of the system which would prevail in City affairs should WOOD, by keeping many candidates in the field, succeed in again seizing our municipal Government. Contrast his social, political and business surroundings with those of WM. F. HAVEMEYER. Look on this picture, and then on that. The choice is in your own hands, and the verdict affecting your own deepest and most permanent interests.

Great Fire at Marianna, Fla.

MARIANNA, Fla., Nov. 4, 1859.

MESSRS. S. C. HERRING & CO.:

GENTS: On the 28th of October our town was visited by a very destructive fire, and the largest one which has ever taken place here, destroying a whole block of the finest stores in the place. I had a Herring's Patent Safe in use, which was subjected to a most intense heat, and fell into a cellar below. After removing from the ruins and opening it, the contents were found to be wholly uninjured.

I would here remark that they truly merit the title of the Champion Fire-Proof Safes. You will please ship me another immediately, as I do not consider my books, papers and money secure without one.

Respectfully yours, D. B. LESLIE.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 2, 1859.

Messrs. KNOWLES & WALFORD, Agent's: We take pleasure in adding to your long list of certificates our testimonials in favor of HERRING'S PATENT FIRE-PROOF SAFES.

In the fire which consumed our Steam-Sawing and Carpenter shops, on the night of the 29th October last, we had one of HERRING'S SAFES, and though exposed to intense heat, (it was entirely red-hot on the outside,) from the burning floors and timbers which fell on it, on opening the next day, we found no appearance to indicate that its contents had been near fire. We shall order another from you a few days, and use the old one at our sawing-mill, near Mayo's Bridge, where you may refer customers who have any doubts about the FIRE-PROOF qualities of HERRING'S SAFES.

WING'S CELEBRATED FARINA CRACKERS,
Made from material prepared from that portion of the wheat which is most nutritious and healthful. It is estimated that one pound contains as much nutriment as two pounds of bread as it is usually baked.
WING'S FARINA CRACKERS
are of small size, over ninety to the pound, and baked dry. They are delightful to the taste, and one of the best crackers ever produced for family use.
FOR LUNCH,
and with oysters, they are unequaled. We ask every mother to procure WING'S FARINA CRACKERS for her children. They are far superior to many of the preparations usually given to them, being decidedly more healthful and nourishing, and as they dissolve readily in the mouth, are always eaten with a fine zest. Ladies and gentlemen will find them unsurpassable for their FINE FLAVOR AND PLEASANT TASTE.
Delicate ladies, and all persons whose habits are more or less sedentary, will find Wing's Crackers most excellent. For professional gentlemen, bankers, merchants and clerks, they may be used for Lunch with great advantage in maintaining a healthful regularity of the system. Teachers and scholars in schools, generally, will find them very agreeable.
WING'S FARINA CRACKERS are a most valuable article for travelers in the cars, or on shipboard, at sea, they are one of the very best things that can be eaten.
The use of them is becoming widely extended, and, in order to guard against deception,
EACH CRACKER IS STAMPED WITH THE NAME OF
"A. WING,"
There are no other crackers manufactured in the United States like these, or known as true Farina Crackers.
WING'S FARINA CRACKERS may be procured of the best family grocers generally, by whom they are extensively sold in different portions of the United States, and at wholesale only of

A CARD.—THE LADIES AND MISSIONARIES of the Five Points' Mission desire gratefully to acknowledge the kindness and liberality of their many friends, by whose generosity they were enabled to provide a rich repast for the hundreds of poor connected with their Mission, and present to each child of the school a reward, on Thanksgiving day. They would especially return thanks to the butchers and dealers of Washington, West Washington and Fulton markets, and the merchants of Washington-st. and vicinity, with many others in and around the City, for their liberal donations of provisions, groceries, clothing, money, &c. They are also much indebted to the proprietors of Fifth-Avenue, Astor, St. Nicholas, Dey-Street, Manhattan, Madison-Square, French's, Lafarge, Merchants', National, Astor-Place, Brevoort and Lovejoy's hotels, and Taylor's, Gosling's, Maillard's, Ferris & Leggett's and Crook's saloons, for so nobly responding to their call, in cooked meats, pies, cakes, confectionaries, &c. They would also mention with gratitude the renewed kindness of Messrs. Sweeney and Hussey, who prepared all their uncooked meats for the table, and of Mr. C. K. Crooks, for a mammoth loaf of bread, weighing 125 lbs., which was suspended in the dining-room for the admiration of all. A full account of donations and donors' names will be published in the next annual report.

Preparations for the Execution of Brown.

THREATS OF RESCUE, &c., &c.

THE EXECUTION OF JOHN BROWN.

THE PREPARATIONS—A TENDER OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION FROM SECRETARY FLOYD.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Nov. 25.

Maj. SMITH, of Virginia, is here, en route for Charlestown. He will relieve Col. DAVIS, and take entire charge of the military arrangements for the execution of JOHN BROWN. Secretary FLOYD has tendered Maj. SMITH any amount of arms or ammunition he may deem necessary. Q.

REPORT THAT PENNSYLVANIA OFFERED AID CONTRADICTED.

PHILADELPHIA, Friday, Nov. 25.

MR. WM. M. HEISLER, Secretary of State, contradicts the report that Gov. PACKER had tendered Gov. WISE the services of ten thousand men.

QUIET RESTORED AT CHARLESTOWN—FALSE REPORTS.

CHARLESTOWN, Friday, Nov. 25.

All now is quiet, with the exception of occasional alarms and rumors, amounting to little or nothing. Four companies of military are quartered in the Court-house. Gen. TALIAFERO has taken command over Col. DAVIS. It is rumored that BROWN has greatly changed during the last twenty-four hours, becoming quite repentant.

RICHMOND, Friday, Nov. 25.

GOV. WISE has ordered five hundred additional troops to be present at the execution of BROWN, on Friday next.

The Enquirer says that it is rumored that the dispatches from Gov. PACKER, of Pennsylvania, tendering military aid, and from Gov. CHASE, of Ohio, cautioning against the approach of fillibusters from that State, are altogether unfounded.

CONTEMPLATED ATTEMPTS AT RESCUE.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Nov. 25.

According to the reported conversations with Gov. WISE, recently, in this city, he has no doubt of the existence of secret societies in various portions of Ohio and elsewhere, the members of which are bound by horrid oaths, not only to rescue BROWN, but to take revenge on those who were instrumental in the conviction of him and his associates, for their offences at Harper's Ferry. The letters which the Governor has received upon this subject are from men in whose word he places the fullest confidence, but whose names will not be revealed by him. It was doubtless the belief of the existence of such societies—numbering, as was reported to him, thousands of members—for the purposes related, that led the Governor recently to call out an additional number of troops.

Several of the Ministers of the Gospel, yesterday, in their Thanksgiving sermons, earnestly condemned the expressions of sympathy for BROWN and his companions, and declared that their execution was due to justice and the enormity of their crime.

THE CASE OF CAPT. COOK.

GOV. WISE'S ORGAN ON THE PLEA FOR COOK'S PARDON.

From the Richmond Enquirer, Nov. 24.

Strange as it may appear, there is on foot a greater effort, if possible, for the pardon of JOHN E. COOK than was made for Old BROWN. We are informed by the North Iowa Times, that efforts are being made upon the Press of the Northwestern States to affect this object. We do not feel the extreme disgust for this attempt that is expressed by the North Iowa Times, because we know how little the character of Gov. WISE is understood by those who think that mercy from him can be bought by political favor or extorted by personal threat.

Those who understand the character of HENRY A. WISE know that if he believed COOK deserved pardon it would be extended to him, though opposed by every paper in the broad limits of our country; but the pardon of COOK is out of the question—he is the most guilty of all the Charlestown prisoners. So far from his being the dupe of Old BROWN, Ossawattomie is the victim of JOHN E. COOK.

COOK misled BROWN, deceived him, and imposed upon all of the prisoners; he gave descriptions of the persons of those who fled. Had COOK, who lived two years in Virginia, while engaged in planning this very crime; made known to old BROWN the actual state of the negroes, had he informed old BROWN that he had not been able to induce one slave to join, and that no aid was to be expected from the non-slaveholders, JOHN BROWN had too much shrewdness not to have seen the folly upon which he was engaged, and he would have abandoned the undertaking. COOK married in Virginia for the purpose of better concealing his designs, and not arousing suspicions; he is doubly criminal, for he sought the destruction of those near and dear to his wife. COOK had visited and been hospitably entertained by the very gentleman he afterwards robbed; he knew from actual experiment that no slaves would join him; he knew that without large reinforcements from the North the attempt must fail; and hence he was the first to fly, and he planned his flight beforehand, leaving his deluded comrades to meet the fate his deceptions had brought upon them. Does such a criminal deserve pardon? We do not believe any unbiased mind can, in the face of such facts, desire the pardon of this man.

ENGLISH COMMENTS UPON THE HARPER'S FERRY AFFAIR.

From the London News.

The oddest part of the story at present is the so-called Provisional Constitution said to be proposed by the rebels. It does not look genuine, and is indeed unintelligible if supposed to apply to the negro sections of the community. As for the rest, the facts ascertained seem to be these: BROWN has been living near Harper's Ferry, on the Maryland side of the river, coming and going for about a year, with his two sons, all assuming the name of SMITH, and giving out that they came for mining purposes. At the farm which they took they gradually collected arms and ammunition, which were hidden by implements of labor, supposed to be got together for the miners who were coming. Only one resident, COOK, who has escaped for the present, was implicated with them, or seems to have been tempted by them. The rest of the band were old Kansas comrades. Their method was to set the negroes of neighboring slaveholders running and to keep the masters as hostages, treating them with all courtesy. It is not yet declared whether any large number of slaves has been run off into the neighboring Free States; but certainly those on the spot seem to have been unprepared, puzzled, and helpless. BROWN probably relied too much on the known fact that slavery is found unprofitable, and is growing more and more unpopular in Western Virginia and Maryland. He assumed that in such a region an opportunity, for abolishing Slavery was all that was needed; and that thence the impulse would spread through the frontier States at least, in time to determine the coming election in favor of the Anti-Slavery Party, which again would complete the abolition of Slavery. From whichever point of view the affair is regarded it is formidable, as miroducing a new and highly perilous stage of a controversy of vital interest to the Republic. It is of the utmost consequence that all complicity on the part of the Abolitionists should be disproved, clearly and immediately. The present is the turning-point in the politics of the planter aristocracy of the South, when, to save a worse evil, they are desiring a free-soil President who shall stop the slave-trade. It will be a grave complication if the fear of servile war should drive them to the other alternative, of staking all on an armed despotism, on behalf of their "peculiar institution." Perhaps this might bring about the more speedy abolition of Slavery; there is no saying; but the Republic would be shattered in the process. If the planters could but see it, their interest lies in the simple act of making their negroes hired laborers instead of salable chattels. This method would in a moment double the value of their land and the efficiency of the labor upon it. Their negroes are not the only slaves on their plantations now; they themselves are not free men; and insurrections, led by political adventurers, will haunt them henceforth. They might free themselves by freeing their negroes, and enrich themselves at the same time. But they do not know, and cannot understand this. It is a pity that they should not learn it before ruin began to fall. Warned of the loosening of the avalanche for some time past, they have only shouted the louder, as if to bring it down. Here is a pressing drift. Will they obviate the destruction? or will they run the risk? Their choice must be now or never.

From the London Globe.

Not a word can be said for Old BROWN. If we were to admit the immoral doctrine, that the terrible provocation he received justifies his declaration—war against slavery and slave owners, it might even in that extremity be fairly said that BROWN had taken ample vengeance in Kansas and Missouri. But nothing can justify persons who enter upon courses of action like that which showed itself at Harper's Ferry, and which even a partial success would have developed into a series of horrible murders and incredible rapine. But it may be justly said that the BROWNS are a product of the abnormal relations existing between the whites and the negroes, between those who favor Slavery and those who condemn it as an abomination; of the state of things which leads men to stick at no measures calculated in their opinion to extend the area of Slavery; of that border code which is embodied in the familiar and dreadful name of LYNCH; and of the weakness of the executive in the Federation, and the sovereign States that compose it. BROWN and his insurrection are products of a singular state of society, of a "degraded and brutal system of politics," to quote again the language of an American journal. The "irrepressible conflict" between free and slave labor—a specimen of which we had in Kansas—is only one of the circumstances which give scope to the BROWNS. The Harneys and Walkers, the Brodericks and Terberts, the Brookes and Fernando Woods, find also ample openings for the energies of their lawless propensities. The whole American people have an interest in "putting down" these men, or rather in effecting those improvements which will make their existence impossible. We have also a great interest in the solution of the problem; for it would be an advantage to us and to all the world, were law and order rendered supreme over the entire North American Continent.

FROM CALIFORNIA AND OREGON.

Fire at Volcano—A New Stage-Road to San Diego—Miscellaneous News.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, Oct. 31, 1859.

Another of our mountain mining towns has suffered by fire. At about 8½ o'clock on Saturday morning, flames were discovered in an unoccupied building opposite the Union Hotel, in the town of Volcano, Amador County. There was very little breeze, yet the flames spread rapidly, and in less than one hour the entire business portion of the town, with the exception of the fire-proof buildings, was in ashes. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. The heaviest losers will be: B. F. GEORGE, of the Empire Hotel, $6,000; GOLDBERG & Co., cigar merchants, $3,000; MANDLEBAUM & Co., $3,000; JIM GOLDSWORTHY, billiard saloon—a new one just finished—$2,000. The total loss will be from $50,000 to $75,000. As an evidence of the prompt energy with which Californians have learned to meet misfortunes of this character, it is worth mentioning that twenty minutes after the fire broke out, some of the sufferers had men on the way to the different saw-mills to engage timber for rebuilding. All the fire-proof buildings stood the test nobly. Both the express offices, the telegraph and post offices were saved.

Our people are already grumbling loudly at the operation of the new Ocean Mail contract. The fine steamer John L. Stephens, connecting with the Baltic on the Atlantic side, arrived here a day and a half ahead of the opposition steamer, Orizaba, which brought the mails. Those parties whose letters came by Express, of course, were served promptly on the arrival of the Stephens; but those who depended upon "Uncle Sam" for their documents, had to wait. Passengers from your port seem to understand the value of a quick sea trip, and thus it happens that the old line brought us nearly double the number that came by the opposition. Ordinarily we shall look for the Baltic's and Atlantic's passengers at least three days ahead of their rivals, and sometimes five days.

A most important discovery has recently been made of a good stage road between San Diego and the desert east of that port, over which the trip between San Diego and Fort Yuma can easily be made in two days' time. With direct steam communication between San Deigo and San Francisco, therefore, the new road brings us within less than four days of Fort Yuma—two days less than the quickest trips ever made heretofore. It would be a very easy matter to give us an Overland Mail between New-Orleans and San Francisco, viâ San Antonio, El Paso and San Die go in sixteen or eighteen days, if Congress would pay for it.

Capt. KIRBY, of the ship Uncowah, which arrived from New-York on the 22d inst., gives quite a thrilling description of an immense ice-berg which he saw off Cape Horn on the 9th of August last.

Capt. KIRBY at first could not believe that it was ice, and thinking he might have been drifted to the northward during the several days in which he had not been able to get an observation, set it down as an island covered with snow. The wind was from the eastward, and the ship going at the rate of eight knots, she soon brought the whole body above the horizon, and not long after the ice was found to stretch along the whole head and on the weather bow. The course of the ship was then altered, so as to bring the ice on the lee bow, and gradually, as the bearings altered, five icebergs of various sizes were made out. The ship passed within a few miles to the windward of them.

The ice-field and bergs were estimated to be from eight to ten miles long, and very high—a solid mass of ice, against which the sea broke, as upon the iron-bound shores of a Continent. At four miles distance the water about the ship was agitated with eddies and ripples caused by the opposing presence of so large a body to the usual ocean currents. The sides along which the ship passed appeared to be precipitous up for more than a hundred feet from the water, when they broke up towards the peaks in the interior of the Island; and down the steppes, the spy-glass showed the existence of great gullies and water-courses. When the sun shone full upon the Island it reflected the light with great brilliancy.

It was late in the afternoon when the Uncowah passed. About 6 o'clock a large English packet-ship, under a cloud of canvas, hove in sight, steering to the eastward, and astern and to leeward of her a bark. Capt. KIRBY displayed his signals reading "ice ahead"—which the ship acknowledged by immediately hauling up to the northward towards Cape Horn, and the bark, though too far distant to read the signals, took the alarm and followed suit. The ice was directly in the track of vessels bound to the eastward. The vessels were steering full upon it, and would have reached it (but for this warning) after dark, when, probably, both would have foundered. The ship appeared to be a large Melbourne packet, and had many people on deck. The name made out from her signals was Philopontas. This immense iceberg was, doubtless, detached from the vast masses in the Antarctic Ocean, and was set to the northward and eastward by the currents.

THOMAS H. LUCAS, (colored) was murdered at La Porte, Sierra County, on the 25th October, by PETER LOMBARD, who shot him through the heart, to revenge an insult to his mother.

Capt. BROWN, of the ship Levanter, has been arrested upon complaint of LEWIS WARDEL, a sailor, who charges him with inflicting a cruel and unusual punishment.

A decree of divorce has been granted in the case Martha Soule vs. Edwin R. Soule.

FROM OREGON.

DISCOVERY OF RICH GOLD DIGGINGS.

Late news from Oregon had been received at San Francisco. A Government express-man named MCGUIRE, recently arrived at the Dalles, brings reliable intelligence that new and rich gold diggings have been discovered near the above-named river.

The Dalles Journal contains the following particulars:

"According to our informant, the discovery is confined to a small bar on the river, which is being worked by soldiers, Quartermaster's men, and a large number of Indians. The men from camp go down after breakfast, walking a distance of five miles, and working not more than half a day, averaging about $20 to the hand. This is without the ordinary conveniences for mining, and with nothing but picks, using frying pans for washing out. With 'rockers,' it is estimated that from $50 to $200 to the hand could readily be taken out.

The discovery, we are told, was made by Sergeant COMPTON, in whose honor the locality has been named 'Compton's Bar.'

The effect of this news has been to create quite an excitement in our town, but as yet we have not heard of any departures for the new gold mines. Should the next advices confirm these startling reports, we may expect to see a stampede scarcely equalled by that to Fraser's River."

Refutation of a Slander.

We copied a paragraph, a day or two since, from the Bridgeport Farmer, stating that a very beautiful lady, who some years since had left her husband, on account of ill-usage, had recently been abducted by him, after being rendered insensible by chloroform. Both husband and wife called upon us yesterday, with a request that we would publish the following denial of the story, and request the Bridgeport Farmer to copy it:

NEW-YORK, Friday, Nov. 25, 1859.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A foul and wicked slander having appeared in your paper of the 23d instant, copied from the Bridgeport Farmer, and a still more slanderous report appeared in the Farmer of the 19th 'nstant. I here say to you the whole is a base slander and falsehood against my husband. It is true I have been absent from my husband for nearly three years. I became satisfied of my error and wrote for my husband to come after me, which he very kindly did, following out my instructions exactly. Whatever difficulty may have existed between us has been amicably adjusted, and not the least difficulty would have occurred between me and my husband had we not been interfered with by other parties. There is not, I am happy to say, one word of truth in the whole statement as it appeared in your paper. I do not censure any paper for inserting it, excepting where it first started, and I earnestly hope they will be as prompt in contradicting it as they were in giving it publicity.

NEW-YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD—PROCEEDINGS FOR SELLING IT ON THE FIRST MORTGAGE.—Application has been made to Comptroller CHURCH by the holders of the first mortgage bonds of the New-York and Erie Railroad, to advertise and sell the Road for non-payment of interest. The Comptroller has placed the demands in the hands of the Attorney-General TREMAIN, who will proceed at once under the act of 1845, to foreclose and sell the Road, with all its appurtenances.

Prior to 1845, the State had made a loan of $3,000,000 to the New-York and Erie Road. By a law of that year, the State released its lien in the following manner: The Road was authorized to issue $3,000,000 of new bonds, which the State was to take in full of its former loan, and assign from time to time to the Company, on the expenditure by it of certain specified sums in the construction of the Road.

Section 6 of this act provides that the holder of any bond, on failure of payment of interest or principal, "may place the same in the hands of the Comptroller who shall proceed to foreclose the same," and sell the Road. Any bondholder, who has filed notice of the fact with the Comptroller, is entitled to three months' notice of the sale.—Albany Evening Journal.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are growing more in favor with the public. It is now conceded they are the best purgative yet put forth from the world of medicine. The time will surely arrive when they will supersede all other purgatives whatever. The ingredients of which they are composed can scarcely be obtained by druggists or the makers of other pills. Dr. BRANDRETH has them grown and prepared without regard to the expense. And this care to make a superior purgative is appreciated, as the sales indicate. Other purgatives are dragging a flickering existence. And yet they may have some merit. But BRANDRETH'S PILLS are safe and sure—safe, because they operate solely on impure humors. No valuable fluid is touched; only effete or worn-out material, which, when taken out of the body, leaves it stronger. They are as pleasant as a truly effective medicine can be. To say that they will not sometimes give pain would not be true, but the pain they give is only because they remove those crude and bad humors from the blood which are the occasion of disease. They open nature's avenues, and this cannot always be done pleasantly.

It is true you may take purgatives which will operate without pain, because they take the balsamic parts from the blood, which is worse than being bled, worse than having the vital fluid abstracted. Beware of them. BRANDRETH'S PILLS only take hold of those matters which the body, when sick, wants to evacuate. They are solely an assistant of nature—nothing more, nothing less. They do not force; they merely assist; and herein is their great value. The man is thrice blessed who is so fortunate as to be acquainted with this good and almost perfect gift to man, because he has, to a great extent, his body insured in health by their occasional use.

Mr. J. C. Rappelyea, of Monmouth County, N. J., writes, March 19, 1859:

"I was troubled in January last with costiveness for several days, and took ten grains of calomel to obtain relief. I took cold, I suppose; at any rate, a severe diarrhœa set in, which my medical attendant found it impossible to arrest. This was followed by dysentery. My strength was all gone. Everything passed through me as I took it. A friend from New-York, Mr. GEORGE LEWIS, fortunately called on me, and advised BRANDRETH'S PILLS. I thought, in my weak condition, one pill would be enough, but he administered four, and the next morning four more. Much impurity came from me, and to my surprise, the soreness and pain diminished. One box cured me fully. I am now hearty, with a fine appetite."

Dr. JAMES LULL, of Potsdam, N. Y., writes, Aug. 11, 1859:

"I met with a man three weeks ago, in Canada, who had slightly injured his finger two or three days before, which caused immediate pain, swelling and violent fever. When I saw him the pain and swelling had extended to his shoulder, depriving him of rest or sleep. The hand was turning dark-colored, and on the point of mortification. His doctor was ignorant of the nature of his case. I got there at evening, and during the night I gave him a whole box of pills, applied a yeast poultice, and saved his life."

Mr. A. ROSS, of Madrid, St. Lawrence County, N. Y., writes, Aug. 22, 1859:

"I can honestly and confidently recommend BRANDRETH'S PILLS to the favorable notice of the public, as the best medicine I have ever dealt in during my thirteen years' experience in the sale of medicines, having prescribed them in hundreds of cases of almost every form of disease, with the happiest results, and I honestly believe they are the best medicine, as a universal remedy, that the world has yet produced."

WARRANTED PURELY VEGETABLE.

All the ingredients of BRANDRETH'S PILLS are purgative, and act in conjunction to open, detach, dissolve, cleanse, cool, heal, and so carry out of the body whatever injures it. By being digested like the food, they enter into and mix with the blood to search out and remove all bad humors. They dissolve all unnatural collections, cleanse the blood, and cure tubercles, ulcers, &c., let them be in what part of the system they may. They injure no part of the body. They carry away nothing that is good. They only remove what is bad. They assist nature, agree with it, act with it, and always do their work well. Their use has saved many a valuable life.

Sold at Principal Office, No. 294 Canal-street, New-York, price 25 cents a box, and by all Druggists.

PARTIAL DEAFNESS AND DISCHARGES FROM THE EAR.—Dr. HARTLEY begs to announce to those of his patients with whom he has been in communication, that he has, in compliance with their special requests, made arrangements to establish his Ear Institution in New-York; and he generously offers to attend all persons suffering from affections of the Ear, without charge, until cured—thereby proving his success unequaled, and protecting the deaf from being swindled by paying self-styled Aurists exhorbitant fees in advance, and the infliction of still more serious evils, by permitting the application of dangerous remedies by inexperienced and unskillful hands.

Dr. H. may here state that he has no connection whatever with any person advertising to cure deafness; neither has he given permission for the publication of a certificate, purporting to emanate from him, and cannot, therefore, be responsible for any alarming consequences resulting from rashness and desperation. The loss of money may not be material to some persons, but the deprivation of one of the most important of the senses ought to be regarded and treated with more than ordinary solicitude.

Deafness, noise in the head, and all disagreeable discharges from the ear, speedily and permanently removed without causing the least pain or inconvenience. A cure in all cases guaranteed where malformation does not exist.

Thirteen years' close and almost undivided attention to this branch of special practice has enabled him to reduce his treatment to such a degree of success as to find the most confirmed and obstinate cases yield by a steady attention to the means prescribed.

The destruction, by fire, of the Philadelphia Ear Infirmary, of which Dr. HARTLEY was the head, having released him from his duties in that city, he has established permanently his institution for the exclusive treatment of Ear Diseases, at No. 101 Fourteenth-street, opposite the Academy of Music.

Consultation and examination each morning.

FRIDAY, Nov. 25—P. M.

The members of the Stock Exchange, after the holiday season of yesterday, renewed business this morning with considerable spirit. The speculative movement noticed early in the week took a more extensive range, and the firmness of the market was quite general at the close of the day. The excitement in Pacific Mail was increased to the intensity of fever heat in the afternoon, when it became generally current that the rival steamship interests are about to be consolidated, making common stock of the Vanderbilt and Roberts steamers, and the late Collins steamers in the new North Atlantic Company on this side, and otherwise disposing of or exchanging one of the Collins steamers (possibly the Adriatic) for Mr. VANDERBILT'S four steamers on the Pacific side. One reason is, that the combined interest is to run a weekly line to and from California. Another is that the trips will be tri-monthly. The full particulars of the present settlement and future running arrangements of the parties, who have thus been brought together once more, will probably be given to the public in an authorized shape in the course of a few days. The Pacific shares opened this morning at 86 ℔ cent., but soon sold down to 84 ℔ cent., under a free disposition to realize on the sudden large advance of Wednesday afternoon. Fresh orders to buy these came in at 84½@85, and were increased in amount, and apparently without limit as to price, in the afternoon, the sales running up to 91½ ℔ cent. after the printed list. The latest quotation of which we heard was 91@91½ ℔ cent. The transactions of the day in the stock amount to something like 4,000 shares. The extreme advance since Tuesday morning is eighteen per cent! There was less stir in Panama, and the final price lower than on Wednesday by about 2 ℔ cent., though the impression obtains that the general movement for the rise is by no means over, because of the fluctuation from 137½@133½ ℔ cent., any more than when the price price fell back last week from 134@129. The speculative interest in New-York Central was materially increased, and something like the September buoyancy was apparent at the close of the day. The purchases were heavy this forenoon, at 81½ ℔ cent., and after the Second Board printed sales 81½ ℔ cent. was paid and bid. The Grain and Flour advices from abroad, which have infused increased activity, at higher prices, into our Corn Exchange, induce the calculation that an unusually heavy Winter traffic, at good prices, will be realized over the New-York trunk lines in December, the Canal competition being then closed. The Erie Receiver and the new Board of Directors feel especially encouraged, and it is understood that they have already shaped their financial arrangements for the early resumption of the mortgage interest. And in order to make the English plan of reorganization the more acceptable to the mortgage creditors, as well as the common bond and stockholders, a separate negotiation has been entered upon for the completion of the Long Dock property, so as to relieve the net earnings of 1860 from the contribution of $500,000 to this object, as proposed in the first draught of the plan. The Mortgage Bonds further advanced, to-day, from 1 to 3 ℔ cent., and the Convertible Bonds 3 to 5 ℔ cent. The First Mortgage sold at 93 ℔ cent., including November coupon; for the Second 83 ℔ cent. was bid, and there were sales of Thirds at 71 ℔ cent., and Fourths at 50 ℔ cent. The Convertibles stand about 30 ℔ cent., and no sales induced by the enhanced bids. The shares rose to $9½, though this is scarcely equal to their appreciation among the holders and buyers in the English market. The Western Stocks were steady for all except Illinois Central, which fell to and a fraction under 60, on the London quotation by the Vigo this morning. Galena was sold somewhat freely on the third week's traffic in November, the increase, as on the second, being small, but the stock closed 72¾ sales, as on Wednesday, while Rock Island was ¼@½ better. The Coal Shares were all firmer. Reading rose to 40 ℔ cent., Delaware to 101½, Pennsylvania Coal, 84. There was no further advance in Hudson River Shares, which were in steady demand; the third mortgage rose to 79¾ sales. Harlem Preferred, ¾@1 ℔ cent. higher. State Stocks steady. The general market left off firm.

Under an order from the Supreme Court, the Receiver of the Erie Road will, on Monday, pay the interest upon the first mortgage bonds, amounting in all to $210,000. The second mortgage coupons, equal to $140,000, will next be paid.

In Money rates we hear of no changes to-day. The Stock Brokers are supplied at from 5 to 6 ℔ cent. Discounts are 6@7 ℔ cent for strictly choice bills. The Bremen steamer New-York takes the European mails to-morrow. Owing to the interference of yesterday's holiday, and the non-arrival of the Africa until late this afternoon, little or nothing is accomplished in Exchange for this opportunity. The terms remain as last quoted—109¾@110 on London; £5 15@£5 13¾ on Paris. We hear of no Specie engagements for the New-York.
